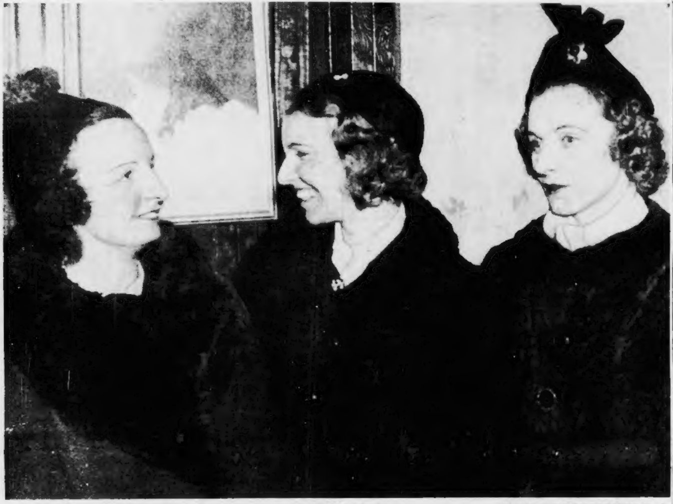
All Three Brides Hear Waiter Get Term In Jail

GETS 2 YEARS FOR 3 WIVES



MEDA ASHWORTH, No. 1 — LYDIA COREY, No. 2 — ELAINE BETTY MORRISON, No. 3

These three wives of Allen Proctor, handsome waiter, were all smiles today in Roxbury court where they gathered to hear him sentenced to two years in jail on polygamy charges. At left is No. 1, the former Meda Ashworth of New Bedford; in center is No. 2, formerly Lydia Corey of New Bedford, and at right is No. 3, the former Elaine Betty Morrison of Roxbury.

Roosevelt Optimistic; 'Parleys End Fear'

Polygamist Jailed for 2 Years

Thrice-married Allen Proctor, handsome waiter with a wedding complex, today was given a two-year term in the House of Correction by Judge Albert F. Hayden in Roxbury district court.

Proctor was continued in $2500 bail for formal sentence tomorrow after Judge Hayden had refused to allow him to change his plea from guilty to innocent on a charge of polygamy.

While wives Nos. 1, 2 and 3 listened with obvious interest, the jurist overruled Attorney Joseph McDonough's contention that Massachusetts courts had no jurisdiction in the case because the third marriage took place in Providence, R. I.

STILL LOVES NO. 2

The three Mrs. Proctors, as chummy as the Ritz brothers, whiled away the dull moments during the session by exchanging snapshots—and anecdotes—of their hash-slinging spouse.

Despondent at the outcome of his nuptial ventures, Proctor cast an unhappy glance at the giggling trio after the decision had been handed down and confessed that although he had given his name to

Air Crash Fatal To Quincy Flier

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 21 (AP)—An army airplane crashed and burned near here today, killing its two occupants, Lieutenants Elliott Countway and Earle T. McArthur, both stationed at nearby Fort Bragg.

Countway was about 23 years old, and his home was in Quincy, Mass. He was a reserve officer but had been on active duty at Pope Field, Fort Bragg, since last July.

McArthur, about 28 years old, was a regular army officer. His home address was Paris, Texas. He is survived by his widow and two children.

Britons See Sub Attack Warship

MALTA, Jan. 21 (INS)—The British steamer Camma today flashed word that she sighted an unidentified submarine attacking a destroyer, believed to be French, in the Mediterranean, west of this island. French destroyers immediately began a search of the area.

This was the first instance of piracy reported in weeks. It closely followed the capture of the American tanker Nantucket Chief by Spanish insurgents, charging she was attempting to run Russian oil into loyalist Spain.

DRACUT, Jan. 21—Fire started by an upset altar candle razed Ste. Theresa's Church, caused damage estimated at $50,000 and menaced the lives of more than 100 worshippers gathered for early morning mass today.

Roaring flames and dense clouds of smoke rising from the stucco structure, which burned like a tinder box, attracted a crowd of 2500 spectators as firemen from three cities fought the conflagration.

And when the fire was finally extinguished after a three-hour battle, only the front wall, the crucifix still intact over the door, remained standing.

Rev. Arthur O. Mercier, administrator, said he was in the sacristy, preparing for the mass to be celebrated in connection with a novena to Ste. Theresa, when the fire began.

A four-foot altar candle set the altar woodwork ablaze. Spreading through the decorations, the flames engulfed the entire structure within 10 minutes.

Cut off from the front entrance, the assembled parishioners were directed by the priest to a rear door and fled to safety.

Rushing to the tabernacle, the heroic administrator bore the sacred vessels and two chalices from the flaming building to the adjoining rectory. He was also able to save two cerboria and the Host, but fierce gusts of flame prevented him from re-entering the church to get the vestments.

Crashing walls and falling rafters endangered the fire-fighters as they strove to save the church.

Father Mercier said that damage to the church itself was approximately $40,000 and that to the furnishings an additional $10,000. The church carried $24,000 fire insurance.

O'Hara Ouster Move in Open

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 21—The move to oust Walter E. O'Hara as president and managing director of Narragansett Park, started by certain stockholders, was brought into the open for the first time today.

The ouster-move announcement, together with strong indications that O'Hara's successor would be James E. Dooley, vice-president of the Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., confirmed an exclusive story by the Boston Evening American two days ago.

Word received here from New York carried the announcement by Edward Rice, associated with the investment firm of August Belmont & Co. This company was one of the three selling stock of the racing association in all parts of the country.

According to Rice, a meeting of the stockholders is being called for February 9, at which time new officers will be elected—as forecast by the Evening American.

Rice stated that the "general feeling" was that sufficient stock had been "lined up to carry the meeting."

There are 370,000 shares outstanding. O'Hara's personal holdings are estimated at about 25,000 shares.

Mrs. Taft Quits Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, O., resigned today as treasurer of the National League of Women Voters to aid her husband's candidacy for the Senate.

Sonja Henie's Big Brother Lands Here

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Leif Henie, Oslo business man who used to take his sister, Sonja, skating, is here from Norway looking forward to reunion tomorrow with her and their mother.

Lexington Man 'Loses' Horses

LEXINGTON, Jan. 21—Most men can lose small unimportant things, but it took a native of this town to lose his team of horses and a pung here today.

Police noticed the team standing on Waltham street for many hours. They finally sent out cars to attempt to find the owner.

The slightly befuddled owner was located in another part of town and explained to police he just couldn't remember where he had left the darn things.

Exams in Bed At Radcliffe

Victims of Mysterious Malady Recovering

Radcliffe girls, stricken with an epidemic of a gastro-intestinal disturbance, took their mid-year exams in bed today. Proctors from the college office carried examination papers to the dormitory bedrooms and supervised the ailing students as they took the tests.

About 40 of the 100 victims remained under the care of Dr. Florence Gilman, head of the Radcliffe hygiene department, today. She reported the epidemic diminishing rapidly at the dormitories, but that cases were still being reported by commuters who live at home.

Dr. Gilman exonerated the college kitchens and water supply from responsibility for the epidemic.

Kennedy to Sail For London Feb. 9

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (INS)—Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission recently appointed ambassador to Great Britain, will sail for London February 9.

He made this announcement after a conference with President Roosevelt.

Retire Cardozo Move Studied

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (INS)—A new vacancy in the Supreme Court, the third within the last six months, may soon be created by special act of Congress, it was learned today by the Washington Times.

The serious illness of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo makes his return to active service improbable. He has not served the 10 years necessary for retirement, nor has he reached the age of 70, the legal retirement age for Supreme Court justices.

In order to retire with the salary of $20,000 a year, such as other retiring justices are entitled to, Justice Cardozo will need the assistance of congressional legislation. Such legislation is being considered.

Dorothy Sebastian Suit Nets $10,000

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 21 (AP)—Dorothy Sebastian, Hollywood screen actress, was awarded $10,000 damages by a superior court jury yesterday in her suit against operators of a San Diego hotel charging malicious prosecution.

Miss Sebastian, who asked $250,000 damages, charged the hotel managers caused her to be arrested and tried on charges of defrauding an inn keeper. In the previous trial Miss Sebastian was exonerated.

War Against U.S., Britain or Russia, Japan's Next Aim

(Editor's note: When Japan has finished with China she will strike again and the victim may be America, England or Russia. H. R. PARIS, Jan. 21 (INS)—Japan will strike again. This is the first and last lesson that a visit to Tokyo teaches, however short the sojourn may be.

Where will she strike? After China, what?

Among differing schools of thought, General Shigeru Honjo, conqueror of Manchuria, put it this way in a memorandum which he passed up through his former minister of war, General Jiro Minami, now Governor-General of Korea, to His Imperial Japanese Majesty:

"After we have conquered China, our empire will be so enriched by its natural resources that we can afford to increase our navy until it is strong enough to drive America to the east of Hawaii, leaving the Philippines in our hands. After America has been driven out of the Far East, the English at Hong Kong and Singapore will not be much trouble, for our navy can easily take these two places."

Suicide at 82 Over Calf Love

HAMILTON, O., Jan. 21 (AP)—Coroner Harry F. Deubel listed today as suicide the death by drowning of George Alvis Schmitt, 82—and attributed the act to grief over separation from a pet calf.

Felix Short, on whose farm Schmitt resided, said the animal unaware that Schmitt had formed an attachment for it.

He said he found the aged man weeping, and several hours later Schmitt's body was found in a cistern.

Chairman Adams (D.) of Colorado, of the Senate public lands committee, made the information public at a hearing on the nomination of F. K. Burlew to be first assistant interior secretary.

Wall St. Needn't Worry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—President Roosevelt said today he believed his conferences with business and other groups were making satisfactory progress and were clearing the atmosphere of misunderstanding.

The President reviewed his recent talks with representatives of business, finance and labor just prior to conferring with automobile manufacturers regarding improved methods of financing aimed at regularizing production and employment.

The business men with whom he has talked thus far, Roosevelt told his press conference, were learning, among other things, to see matters from a national point of view, and were not concerning themselves only with their own separate problems.

Distinct progress was being made, he said.

PLANS ADVISORY BOARD

Asked to comment on resentment by some labor leaders over his suggestion that unions make public their financing, the chief executive suggested it would be worth while for everybody to study the British trade union system.

When informed that unions in Great Britain forbade political contributions, the President said he did not know about that.

Explaining further his comments to the Business Advisory Council Wednesday night, the President said he did not have in mind creating any special body to advise with the government on policy.

It had been reported that he contemplated forming a permanent advisory body with members com-

New Lodge Fight On Housing Wage

Will Demand 'Prevailing' Rates at Conference Report on Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (INS)—Administration leaders today drove for final enactment of the Wagner-Steagall housing bill, which is expected to start a wave of home-building and put thousands of men to work.

House approval of the conference report on the Senate-House bills will be sought today. The Senate may approve the report Monday.

Though the Senate is locked in a filibuster against the anti-lynching bill, the conference report on the housing bill is privileged business, and it can be called up without displacing the pending measure.

Senator Lodge (R.) of Massachusetts will fight for restoration of his "prevailing wage" amendment, which the conferees deleted.

"It is a great pity a humanitarian amendment which could mean so much to the everyday man has to be thrown out of the window because it happens to conflict with the scheme of the bureaucracy in Washington," Lodge declared.

The bill, as it stands approved by the conferees, would permit the F. H. A. to insure mortgages amounting to 90 per cent on the value of homes costing up to $6000. On $10,000 homes the first $6000 could be 90 per cent insured, the remainder 80 per cent.

At the present time the F. H. A. can insure mortgages only up to 80 per cent.

25-YEAR PLAN

On lower-priced homes, under the new legislation, loans would carry five per cent straight interest, plus ¾ per cent on the diminishing balance.

On higher-priced houses loans would carry and insurance premium charge running from one-half of one per cent to one per cent. The straight interest charge would be five per cent.

Borrowers could pay back loans on $6000 homes over 25 years, but larger loans would be on a 20-year basis.

Filibuster Faces Night Sessions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Democratic Leader Barkley served notice in the Senate today that he would call for night sessions beginning Monday in an effort to break the filibuster against the anti-lynching bill.

Barkley took the floor at the outset of today's session, the fourteenth which the Senate has devoted to the anti-lynching bill, to warn that other measures were coming along rapidly and that disposition must be made of the pending bill.

Barkley did not urge the Senate either to pass or reject the measure, merely declaring he wanted it out of the way.

Despite his statement, the filibuster went on.

Senator Bilbo (D. of Mississippi) started a speech against the measure with the assertion that he was willing to speak "30 days or 60 days or longer" to "defeat this unthinkable, un-American and un-Democratic piece of legislation."

Quick Recovery In Trade Seen By Biggers

Jobless Census Chief Warns Speed Peril In Comeback

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—A speedy business recovery was predicted today by John D. Biggers, administrator of the unemployment census and president of Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company, of Toledo.

Appearing before the Senate unemployment committee, Biggers said he expected the upturn to occur momentarily, but warned that too sharp a swing back might delay permanent stability.

Basing his optimistic prediction on the assumption that overstocked inventories have been rapidly depleted during the recession, Biggers added:

"I think, however, that we have a real problem before us, and that problem is to see that the rebound, if helped by artificial stimulus, is not too sudden."

Biggers explained to Senator Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, chairman of the committee, that he was referring to demands of previous witnesses that the government launch a large spending program as the quickest way to recover.

He said many factors contributed to the business decline.

World conditions, he said, played a part as did sharp curtailment of government spending.

Among other factors, he listed the change in Federal Reserve requirements, stock market margin increases, the sterilization of gold, President Roosevelt's announcement last spring that some prices were too high, and strikes and labor disputes.

Auto Heads Agree On Roosevelt Plan

White House Parley Opposes High Pressure Selling Tactics

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Leading automobile manufacturers announced after a White House conference today they were in "hearty agreement" with President Roosevelt's principles regarding installment selling of automobiles.

The President had been represented as desirous of eliminating certain "abuses" from such buying.

However, Alvan Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, said instalment buying, properly used, had and would continue to help millions of families raise their standard of living, and also that it had helped and would continue to help increase employment.

Macauley, spokesman for the group, which included both manufacturers and automobile finance company heads, said all concurred in his statement.

BAN HIGH-PRESSURE

He said the group told the President they were "hopeful a seasonal increase in sales in the spring would bring an improvement in business."

Macauley said the automobile men would meet among themselves to try to work out some conclusions about regularizing employment and discouraging high-pressure selling.

"High pressuring customers or permitting their desires to take them into debt beyond their means," said Macauley, who is president of the Packard Motor Company, "is bad business all around.

"We agreed to meet and discuss among ourselves any possible improvements relating to the subjects discussed, and to report back to the President."

AGAINST 12 P. C. RATE

President Roosevelt recently complained that auto dealers were overselling the market by telling customers that prices were going up, and also by granting excessively liberal credit terms.

Macauley said no definite credit figures were mentioned at today's conference. When asked if what a reporter called a 12 per cent interest rate was discussed, he replied that it was not, but added, "we are against it."

"We had a broad discussion of the factors affecting business and government," said Macauley, dictating from a pencilled memorandum prepared by the conferees, "and we believe it was very helpful."

EDSEL FORD THERE

Besides Macauley, those conferring at the White House were Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company; William S. Knudsen, president of the General Motors Corporation, and K. T. Keller, president, and B. E. Hutchinson, vice-president, of the Chrysler Corporation.

Also present were these finance company heads: John J. Shumann, Jr., president of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation; Henry Ittleson, president of the Commercial Investment Trust; A. E. Duncan, president of the Commercial Credit Company, and Ernest Kanzler, president of the Universal Credit Company.

Policy of Deal On Taxes Lashed At Hearing

House Group Clashes Over Question Of Evasion

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Conflict over the administration's tax policy was precipitated at the House Ways and Means committee hearing today by E. H. Lane, president of the Lane Cedar Chest Company of Alta Vista, Va.

Lane assailed a provision in the sub-committee's tax report placing a penalty on family or closely held corporations earning more than $50,000 a year, and distributing less than 60 per cent profits in dividends.

His company, he said, which has earned as high as $167,000 a year, escaped part of the undistributed profits tax by issuing notes to stockholders, instead of declaring dividends.

"I'd like to know," interjected Representative Crowther (R.) of New York, "how closely this resembles tax evasion?"

Chairman Vinson (D) of Kentucky, of the sub-committee, who had explained that this method could be used to reduce taxes, flared up at Crowther's question.

"If it is a method of evasion, it is a method which was set out in report of Senate and House committees," he said. "It is not evasion, because the law set out the method."

Lane, who said he was a life long Democrat, aroused committee members by assailing administration policies.

"We can't understand what the political and economic philosophy of this administration is," he said. "Perhaps the administration does, but we doubt it."

BACKS TAX REVISION

The National Association of Manufacturers, through H. Boardman Spalding of New York, gave "qualified" approval to the committee's tax revision program.

The organization, he said, still opposes the principle of the undistributed profits tax. But reduction of the "penalty levy" to a spread of four per cent, he added, "is a real improvement."

But he opposed imposition of an additional levy, above the 16 to 20 per cent rates, on closely held corporations.

Navy Bill Shift Loses in House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (INS)—The House today rejected, 91 to 25, an attempt to increase the $553,000,000 naval appropriation bill by $2,000,000 for airplanes, a move aimed at eliminating a similar amount for construction of two new battleships.

The amendment was offered by Representative Boileau (P.), Wisconsin, who declared that the two proposed new $70,000,000 dreadnaughts would be "perfectly helpless" if attacked by modern aircraft.

The use of battleships was defended by Chairman Umstead of the House naval appropriations sub-committee, who declared that naval experts "tell us that we need battleships, and if you disregard their advice you are taking the future safety of this country in your hands."

Made a Citizen, Bar Member

After a two-year wait, Kathleen A. M. Fairchild, 30-year-old Boylston street secretary, today became an American citizen and a member of the bar at the same time.

Although she passed the bar two years ago she was unable to practice because, as a native of Prince Edward Island, she was not a citizen of this country. Last month she obtained her naturalization papers and today Judge Henry T. Lummus in supreme court administered her the lawyer's oath.

New Pasteurizing Test for All Milk

A new chemical test to determine whether milk has been properly pasteurized was announced today by the state public health department, which approved it after six months' trial.

Its operation is based on the fact that pasteurization eliminates phosphates from raw milk. Already 950 samples taken from delivery wagons have undergone department tests. About [illegible]0 failed. Firms failing to pasteurize milk properly face prosecution.

Aim Costs $250, Ruins $35,000 Art

It will cost Elias Stavropoulos of Congress street, Chelsea, about $250 for throwing a bottle through a $35,000 painting, it was decided in Suffolk Superior court today.

Stavopoulos pleaded guilty before Judge George James to a charge of wanton destruction of a painting f othe Henley Regatta in the lobby of the Boston Arena several months ago. He said he tried to hit a bottle under the painting but missed.

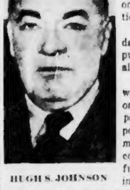
Gen. Johnson Says:

RADIO JITTERS

Censorship Free Talk Blow

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

CHICAGO, Jan. 21—All I know about Mae West's famous broadcast—Adam and Eve—is what I have read in the papers. It is said to have made the garden scene from Adam and Eve almost as sexy as the garden scenes from Faust.



HUGH S. JOHNSON

The sponsors noted a nick in their sales curve and a great radio chain was hauled on the carpet by the Federal Communications Commission.

The broadcast itself is water over the dam. It was a boner so big that the bad public reaction was discipline enough for all concerned.

It would never have happened again whether the commission had dipped in its oar or not. On that we can let the dead past bury its dead. But the commission's pontifical ponderosity is quite a different matter. It commended the broadcasting company for its prompt apology, but refused to accept as an explanation of the incident that it was a blunder.

No—oh no! With all the facilities the broadcasting companies have for a fine-tooth censorship of everything that goes over the air according to the commission, they are to be held to a rule of absolute responsibility for any utterance that is not "in the public interest."

The broadcasting companies are reminded that they don't pay anything to use the air. Their product enters homes, nurseries, schools, automobiles and clubs, not to mention pool-rooms and penitentiaries—and they are reminded of that. Yes, as Heywood Broun observes—if the listener doesn't turn it off.

For these reasons they are told they must censor everything "in the public interest." The commission, it is said rather regretfully, has no power of censorship—but even sub-stations (which couldn't possibly have known what Mae was going to say) are going to hear about it when their licenses come up for renewal—because they didn't cut her off.

The commission giveth license and taketh away license—blessed be the name of the commission! This is an arbitrary power of economic life or death—no matter what the investment may be and no matter what the public may wish.

It is not hard for any moron to perceive what is lewd, immoral, obscene and nasty. Nobody wants that kind of stuff on the air and nobody has a right to put it there. There are plenty of other high class places to spread smut. But this "public interest" business is another matter.

The Democratic party doesn't regard the Republicans as in the public interest. The Republicans think Mr. Roosevelt is not and Mr. Roosevelt says large chunks of American business are not. Some of his followers think the whole capitalist system is not. Mr. McNinch of the F. C. C. is a favorite of this group and was put where he is partly for that reason.

• • •

Many members of the Third New Deal regard radio as their own particular baby. They already have broadcasting managers jittery. If the job of every subordinate in the program departments depends on whether he permits on the air something that somebody on the commission later thinks was not "in the public interest," pretty soon all we will have will be "fireside chats," selections from the Rollo books, and the speeches of "Howling" Harold Ickes and Assistant Attorney-General Robert (Stonethrow) Jackson.

This is a bold and outright prelude to censorship. The effect of it is a threat—not merely and properly against smut—but clearly and improperly against free expression of opinion.

Without more, it will have an effect in that direction because the whole broadcasting business is at the absolute mercy of the commission.

Roosevelt Sees 'Fear' Ended

prising all types of interest—agriculture, consumer, and the like, as well as business.

He said he was trying to work out, without legislation, a plan whereby private groups would come together and exchange information among themselves.

For example, he said it was helpful when John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, sat at the same table with Thomas W. Lamont, J. P. Morgan partner, and Owen D. Young of the General Electric Company, to consider plans for attacking the recession.

The conferences, he said, were serving to clear up many false impressions, which he attributed mostly to "politics."

LISTS 4 CHIEF EVILS

Among these he listed:

1—Fear that the President was aiming at branch banking when he made his general observations last week concerning holding companies. Roosevelt said today he was talking about banks which did not undertake management, and indicated that Wall Street had nothing to fear.

2—Misapprehension that his remarks about abolition of holding companies might, for instance, apply to such an institution as the Pennsylvania Railroad, which, although an operating unit, functions through a dozen states. The President said he obviously had been talking about public utility holding companies in particular last week.

3—The charge that he had been inconsistent by calling for increased prices in 1933, and later saying they were too high. Roosevelt said this was not a fair statement of the case, because when he took office, prices were at rock bottom. His administration merely was trying, he said, to get them back somewhere to the 100-index level commonly used.

BALANCE IN LAND

4—The assertion that the administration was "inconsistent" in curtailing planted acreage, on one hand, and improving it on the other. The President said his policy of soil erosion prevention improved land in some sections, while other land was being taken out of cultivation elsewhere, striking a balance.

Roosevelt told the reporters his business conferees were getting to understand that failure to obtain certain legislation was not entirely due to the administration, and that Congress fits into the picture.

All such things achieved at the meetings were described by Roosevelt as an educational program, which by and large was working out very well.

He predicted there would be some irreconcilables who would not co-operate to improve conditions.

Asked if he favored Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to railroads needing reorganization, the President said that depended on whether RFC Chairman Jesse F. Jones thought he could get adequate security.

Johnson Views New U. S. Party

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 21 (AP)—General Hugh S. Johnson charged in an address here that the Anti-lynching bill before Congress is "part of a design" to build up a new political party in the United States.

Speaking to the annual convention of the Associated Industries of Oklahoma, the former NRA chief outlined the "new party."

"It is to be composed," he asserted, "of the Negroes, of the unemployed, of so much of the old Republican agriculture as can be kept in line by subsidy, and so much of labor as can be convinced that it is to their interest to have government kick industry to pieces—a party of the discontents."

Pauper Grave for Man Gossip Killed

Simpson, Not Widow, Slain, They Claim At Tewksbury

By ANTHONY MERRILL

TEWKSBURY, Jan. 21—They said here today that perhaps it was Frank Simpson who was murdered, not Mrs. Jennie Andelman.

This was a contrite expression of a troubled public conscience but nobody feels badly enough about it to save Simpson from a pauper's grave.

Mention that and they say:

"Well, perhaps he did kill her. We can't know for sure."

Besides, he was a nobody. The life that ran thin in his veins was nourished by bread-crust soup. Death has no marble shafts for those who scarcely count.

And yet, if the inquest which resumes today finds that Mrs. Andelman met her death in an accidental fire, there could be a shaft over Simpson's mound in potter's field. Just a plain one, mind you, and inexpensive with an inscription something like this:

FRANK SIMPSON
BORN 1881. DIED 1938.
SLAIN BY GOSSIP

There could be, but there won't be.

INQUEST RESUMES

The inquest at which Simpson was to have been the star witness resumes in Lowell court today. This is the inquest into the death of Mrs. Andelman, whose body was found in the charred ruins of her fire-swept camp in South Tewksbury last October.

But it will also be, in fact if not in title, an inquest into the death of Frank Simpson who died with a rope around his neck in his lonely shack, his cold bread-crust soup untouched, while they called a belated inquest.

Frank Simpson, "slain by gossip." Hounded to his death by shrewish tongues, some of them male. One of them, in fact, a man who was nearer the fatal Andelman fire than was Simpson when the blaze first flickered in the flimsy cottage.

SENT INTO WOODS

Simpson was in the woods gathering kindling, when the flames shot up. He had been SENT into the woods; he hadn't gone of his own volition.

And when he ran feebly back to help in the vain effort at quelling the fire and rescuing his employer for 15 years, it was too late.

In those flames—although he did not know it then—perished his hope for collecting back wages for 15 years, according to his lawyer, and the span of his stay on earth shriveled.

Penniless, hungry, a lonely man old beyond his years, Simpson fell prey to the tongues of merciless shrews of both genders.

More and more he kept to his little board shack, through which the rains dripped in summer and numbing blasts whistled in winter.

But on occasions when he went out, the merciless shrews clucked and called at him:

"Murderer!"

"You killed the old woman!"

"Why did you kill the old woman?"

DREAM VOICES

No doubt in the night blackness of his shanty the voices came to him in his fitful dreams, whispered the accusations from bleak corners and echoed them in the moan of the winter winds.

Perhaps it was in the icy night that he collected his pitiful store of bread crusts from offal cans of the neighborhood—a stooped, gray wraith fumbling thin sustenance into his paper bags.

Some time after the fatal fire, Simpson sought out Francis C. Zacharer of Lowell, a lawyer, to see if he could collect back pay from the estate of Mrs. Andelman.

Long years back, Simpson said, he had been promised $3 a week by the old lady if he would look out for her string of cottages, but except for an occasional dollar bill he said he never received the slim wage.

But then the insistence of relatives of the old lady, even though her death had been ruled accidental, caused the district attorney to reopen it and call an inquest.

HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND

Simpson did not know what an inquest was.

"I explained to him just what an inquest was," said Attorney Zacherer, "and told him that he was only a witness, like many others; that it was his duty to help find how Mrs. Andelman died, or who killed her.

"I told him to come to my office at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and I would go to court with him, although, I said, I did not believe I would be allowed to go before the judge. He said that a friend would drive him in."

But before that the shrews drove him to a peace in death, the shrews who clucked and who called out at him:

"Why did you kill the old woman?"

"Murderer!"

"You killed the old woman!"

'Nobody'

'Voices' Led Him To Hang Self

He didn't know. You see him here trying to explain. Then, bewildered by repeated questioning into the death of Mrs. Jennie Andelman in a Tewksbury fire, and by the gossip of "voices," day and night, Frank Simpson, handyman, hanged himself. A grave in Potter's Field awaits the man, who is called now "just a nobody."

67-Pound Slayer Gets 4th Reprieve

SHERBROOKE, Que., Jan. 21—Kenneth Brown, of Milton, Vt., sentenced to be hanged January 28 for murder, received his fourth reprieve today. His execution has now been set for July 29.

Brown, convicted of slaying Keith Baldwin, April 18, 1935, is paralyzed and weighs but 67 pounds.

Dean Noe Silent On His Ouster By Bishop

Fasting Rector Ignores Plea to Take Food And See Doctor

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 21 (AP)—On the 20th day of his fast, the Rev. Israel Harding Noe kept a tight-lipped silence today concerning the order removing him as dean of St. Mary's Episcopal cathedral, but ignored his bishop's plea to take food and drink and seek medical advice.

Visibly affected by Bishop James M. Maxon's order removing him, the gaunt clergyman shut himself in the deanery after announcing he would withhold comment until he had an opportunity to interview the bishop. But it was pointed out that Bishop Maxon's authority is absolute, and Dean Noe has no recourse.

The bishop's action came as a surprise to many members of the church and friends of the clergyman. Dean Noe's statement neither challenged nor accepted the order of removal.

In advising Dr. Noe of his removal, the bishop said the dean and his family would be accorded "economic security" and that the dean would have a place in the diocese "where his vast spirituality and his great talent can do further good" after he gives up his present "vagary." It was indicated, however, that Dr. Noe would not be returned to the cathedral post.

Nellie Sullivan Dies at 70

FALL RIVER, Jan. 21—Mrs. Nellie L. Sullivan, 70, deputy collector of internal revenue in Boston, and former national Democratic committeewoman, died today at the home of her sister, Mrs. John F. Leary, of Highland avenue.

She was the first national committeewoman from Massachusetts, serving in that capacity 12 years. She attended the 1928 Democratic convention in Houston, Tex., as an "Al" Smith delegate and the 1932 convention in Chicago as a Roosevelt delegate.

Mrs. Sullivan had been ill about three weeks. Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. from her sister's home, followed by solemn high mass of requiem in Sacred Heart Church.

Born in Danielson, Ct., the daughter of Edward and Mary Maher, she graduated from Fall River High School in 1885 and Normal School in 1888. She taught here several years before her marriage to the late Michael F. Sullivan.

Long active in city and political affairs, she was past president of the Fall River Women's Club, the Catholic Women's Club, the Richard Borden Relief Corps of the G. A. R. and the Queen's Daughters. She was a close friend of Senator David I. Walsh.

Bail for Jaquith Fixed at $10,000

Merlin Jaquith, Chelmsford alleged member of the Dunne-Powers bandit gang, was held in $10,000 double surety today for next month's session of superior criminal court after he waived examination on charges of armed robbery of a Beacon Hill pharmacy.

The limping youth, admitted companion of blonde Ruth Freedman, sought as queen of the bandit gang, also faces charges of participation in an attempted New Year's eve holdup in Stoneham when Sidney Power, young gang leader, died under a hail of police bullets.

Coma Woman Talks Again

Trolley Car Victim Speaks to Doctor

Miss Anna J. Lennon, 42, of Carlford street, Jamaica Plain, who has been in a coma for six days at Forest Hills Hospital after being struck by a street car, today was believed to be on the road to recovery when she uttered her first words.

Physicians were at her bedside when she opened her eyes and murmured:

"Yes—yes—yes!"

Girl Mother, 12, Asks Pension

LINTON, Ind., Jan. 21 (INS)—Betty June Lacer, who attracted wide attention three weeks ago by giving birth to a son at the age of 12 years, is an applicant for a mother's pension from the State of Indiana, it was disclosed today.

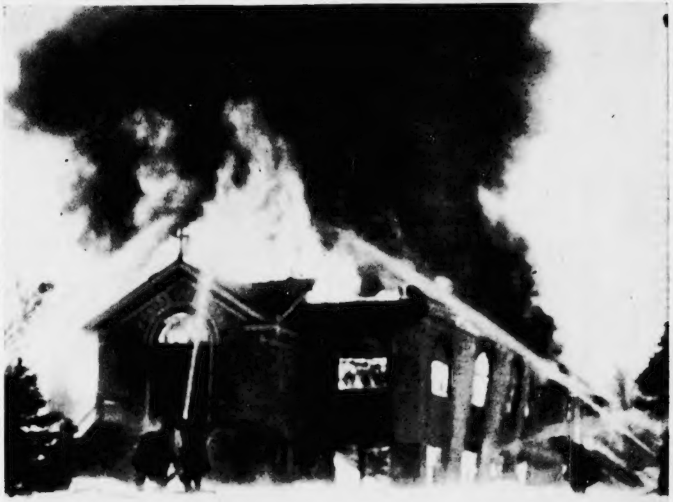
Betty's mother, Mrs. Ben Lacer, filed the petition, stating the infant's father, 15-year-old Tommy Chapman, was not providing adequate support for the baby.

Tommy's parents, refusing to allow their schoolboy son to wed Betty in an out-of-the-state ceremony, have agreed to pay $500 over a period of 10 years.

Woman Nurses 14 Stab Wounds

Mrs. Louise McNeil, Flagg street, Roxbury, is shown at the Boston City Hospital, where she was taken with 14 knife wounds. James McNeil, her husband, was questioned by police.

Vain Fight to Save Burned Church



Hampered by snow, firemen direct a stream of water on blazing Ste. Theresa's Church, Dracut. More than 100 parishioners, gathered for early morning mass, barely escaped the flames when Rev. Arthur O. Mercier, administrator, directed them to a rear door. Shown above, the structure is a mere shell as flames gut the interior. Firemen from Dracut, Lowell and Chelmsford responded to alarms.

3 Wives See Man Jailed 2 Years

all three, his heart belonged to No. 2.

"I love my second wife," he said. "I wish I could talk to her."

The favored bride is blonde and pretty Lydia Curry, 23, of [illegible] street, New Bedford.

TALKS TO NO. 2

His wish was granted and he said to her:

"I just wanted to know how you are, and I'm worried about the baby."

"I'm all right now," she replied. "As for the baby, you didn't worry about him when you left us and married another girl."

Later she told a reporter:

"He'll never see that baby again as long as I live!"

SAYS SHE INSISTED

Wife No. 1 was 25 [illegible] Meda Ashworth, chubby and brunette, of Fall River. No. 3 (she's a blonde, too) is snowy, blue-eyed. She was Elaine Betty Morrison of Roxbury whom Proctor said he married because she insisted."

Proctor pleaded guilty to polygamy last January 7 and was held in bail of $2500 for disposition today.

It was Lydia who had Proctor in court at New Bedford eight months ago on a bigamy charge after she learned he had neglected to relinquish Wife No. 1 legally. In that case Proctor was given a six month suspended sentence, but nevertheless he was married to Betty Morrison two weeks later.

"I don't care one way or the other what happens to him as far as I am concerned," declared Meda, Wife No. 1. "It doesn't mean a thing in my life.

WIFE No. 2 HAS BABY

"But I do feel sorry for Lydia, because she has the baby and he left her with it. She's the only one of us who really will suffer by all this."

Wife No. 3, Roxbury's Betty, who looks enough like Wife No. 2 to be her sister, laughed at this and declared gayly:

"I hope he gets plenty. He has it coming to him. The only thing I wish is that I could be 16 again tomorrow. Then I never would have met him."

Which furnishes a rough idea about the change in Betty's sentiments in just two weeks.

Girl Still Silent, Sent Back to Jail

Still obdurate, Frances Finley McCullough of St. John, N. B., graduate of Brighton high school whom the immigration authorities want to return to Canada, again refused to answer questions today in Federal court and was returned to East Cambridge jail.

Nine days ago the 19-year-old girl who is alleged to be in the country illegally, was sent to jail by Judge George C. Sweeney for contempt after she had refused to obey a court order to answer questions put to her by immigration officials.

When she was brought into court again today Judge Sweeney said:

"Do you understand that you were committed to jail because you refused to obey a court order to answer questions?"

BOWED HEAD ANSWER

The girl merely bowed her head.

"Do you understand that you may purge yourself of contempt if you answer the questions?" said the court.

Again she bowed her head, but this time made an inaudible reply.

"Will you please speak up loud," said Judge Sweeney. "Have you changed your mind yet? Do you understand that you can be released from jail on the contempt charge if you answer the questions?"

Her reply was again inaudible, but when she was told to speak up she said:

"I would like to speak to my attorney."

REFUSES TO TALK

Judge Sweeney called a 10-minute recess, during which she consulted Attorney Archie M. Cohen. When court resumed, Judge Sweeney asked Miss McCullough:

"What do you say now?"

"I have nothing to say," replied the girl.

"Do you still persist in refusing to answer questions?"

"Yes."

"She may be returned to the East Cambridge jail," ordered Judge Sweeney, and Miss McCullough was taken away by a deputy marshal.

Assassins' Plot Fails

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 21 (AP)—Ten Chinese gunmen attempted today to assassinate General Li Tu, former Manchurian guerilla chieftain now living in the British concession here, but instead killed one of his kinsmen and wounded another.

Wife Stabbed 14 Times In Her Roxbury Home

Mrs. Louise McNeil, 23-year-old Roxbury housewife, lay in Boston City Hospital today suffering from 14 stab wounds, a broken arm and nose and other injuries.

Although her condition was serious, and she was conscious only at intervals, the young wife was expected, by doctors, to recover.

James McNeil, 22, six-foot, 160 pound laborer, was apprehended by police outside the hospital, and questioned.

Placed in the police headquarters lineup, McNeil told detectives he had been drinking with a friend all day yesterday. To most questions about his movements during the day he replied:

"I can't remember. I don't know."

"I went looking for work yesterday afternoon," Mrs. McNeil explained, as she wearily opened her eyes for a moment, "and returned home late. Two men and three women gave me a ride back from the laundry, where I had applied for a job.

"We drove up to my parents' home in Flagg street where my husband and I live."

She was then attacked, the wife declared.

Doctors at the hospital to which she was rushed in a police ambulance, said she had been beaten worse than any patient they had seen in several years.

Her condition was considered so serious early today that a priest was summoned from the Immaculate Conception Church rectory. He administered the last sacrament of the Catholic church.

Garlic Defense Fails Autoist

The fragrant odor of garlic, not that of alcohol, caused his arrest for operating under the influence of liquor and drunkenness, Genero Chiampa, 43, told Judge Arthur P. Stone in East Cambridge district court today.

Chiampa, who lives on Grove street, Boston, testified he had eaten pork chops garnished with garlic and had drunk two glasses of wine the night of January 13, when he was stopped by Patrolman John J. Roache in Arlington.

Placed on the stand, Roache said the odor was not garlic.

The judge thought Roache should know the difference and imposed a suspended fine of $35 for the operation charge. The drunkenness count was filed.

DiStasio Bodies To Undertaker

Interrupting a controversy as to whether Senator Joseph A. Langone was to receive the body of Anthony DiStasio for burial as well as that of Frank, young Mrs. Anthony DiStasio today came forward with an order delivering the bodies of the two executed men to an entirely different undertaker.

Both bodies were removed from the North Grove street morgue a short time later to the firm that will bury them, that of Della Russo & Cataldo of Prince street, North End.

Langone had announced that the elder DiStasio before his death had directed the warden of state prison to turn his body over to him and that he was also willing to bury the son.

Farnum Charges Boston 'Ridden With Graft'

G. O. P. Gubernatorial Aspirant Tells 'Y' Job Plight Vital

"Our community is graft ridden" and "the people are being grossly deceived and brazenly exploited," it was charged today by George R. Farnum, special counsel for the Boston Finance Commission before the Boston City Federation.

Speaking at the Boston Y. W. C. A., Farnum, a potential candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, said:

"The extent of continued unemployment is tragic. The amount of relief costs has been unprecedented. The burden of taxes continues to increase.

"Yet the spoilsmen, chiselers and racketeers—those who live upon their fellow citizens—have never been more active. I am not a pessimist, but no one can shut his eyes to the fact that the situation is appalling.

SCORES IMMUNITY

"In spite of the huge financial toll exacted from the people, the moral cost of bad government is even more serious. History teaches us that the downfall of nations generally begins with moral decay within. That decay has definitely set in here.

"The worst feature is the certain demoralization of the younger generation. They are growing up in a world in which grafters and racketeers enjoy relative immunity, exploiters prosper and are publicly honored, and the role of the political masquerader and counterfeit is played with seeming conspicuous success.

"The younger generation is coming to believe that success in life is not a matter of honest, hard and useful work but of influence and drag; that politics are rotten to the core and that public office is not reached through merit but is obtained through pull and through purchase.

SEES AWAKENING

"There are, however, indications that the people are awakening to the gravity of the situation. There are signs that a major revolt against bad and corrupt government is brewing.

"The women have, in a large measure, kept alive the spiritual ideals in life. Though frequently deceived, their devotion to high standards in civic life has not wavered.

"They are cast to play a big role in the coming battle for reform."

Old Showboats Never Like This

N. Y.'s Exiled Strip Shows on Hudson

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Burlesque was back on its shapely legs today, with the difference that they are now sea legs.

From Edward F. Lynch, former director for the brothers Minsky and their temples of tease, came the boat-rocking announcement that the strip tease is to be revived—not on 42d street, but on the broad bosom of the Hudson.

A vessel has been chartered, a grand galaxy of 25 Eves engaged, and nothing remains but to plot the itinerary, open the ticket window and throw ropes to the lads who get pushed off the gangplank in the rush.

License Commissioner Paul Moss will not permit the strip tease in New York, but Moss has no jurisdiction on the rolling waters of the Hudson and joy can be as unrefined as the customers will stand for.

"And in twenty-five years of show business, I never have heard the customers yell 'stop!'" says Mr. Lynch.

Only objection might come from the War Department. There's an arsenal in the middle of the Hudson upstream, and you can't let anything get too hot near an arsenal.

Robbery, Murder Theory in Death

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—Police today leaned to the theory of robbery and murder in the death of Ruland Thompson, 41, who suffered a fractured skull and spinal injuries in a plunge down a dumbwaiter shaft at his West Side apartment.

Although a doctor's report showed Thompson was intoxicated when he fell, members of his family pointed out to police that a gold watch and his usual well-filled pocketbook were missing when his body was found.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The President was talking to one of his intimates about the difficulty of finding good men willing to give their time to government service.

He pointed out that there were some good men in the government, but the really good ones were so few that he was in a constant dilemma to decide where he needed them most.

"You take Bob Jackson," he said, referring to his assistant attorney general. "I could use him as a justice of the Supreme Court. Or, I could use him as Governor of New York. But he's invaluable as assistant attorney general. I could use him in any number of places—but there's only one Bob Jackson."

The President didn't elucidate the other places where he could use Jackson, but it is an open secret that Bob is Roosevelt's private, though long-distance choice for Democratic presidential nominee in 1940—provided he takes the intermediary hurdles.

Chief intermediary hurdle, of course, is the governorship of New York, for which Jackson is the President's candidate. If he makes this, he will be in direct line for the presidential nomination.

Behind all this is Roosevelt's determination to pick his own successor, while his old-line Democratic opponents are equally determined that he shall not. As Jack Garner once expressed it:

"We don't want any New Dealers heading the Democratic ticket in 1940."

Jackson stands for identically the same program Roosevelt stands for, in addition to being one of the ablest members of the administration.

DUKE OF WINDSOR—Mrs. Roosevelt recently has told intimate friends of a family difference which developed over the proposed visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor some months ago.

During those electric days, Mrs. Roosevelt once walked into the dining-room of the White House to find her husband and his mother in earnest pre-dinner conversation. The President was saying:

"But this is my house, Mother, and I propose to invite to my house whomsoever I please."

To which Mrs. James Roosevelt, Senior, rejoined hotly:

"But Franklin, you can't invite them, you simply can't!"

During the meal that followed, the atmosphere was distinctly cool. After it was over, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt spoke privately with her mother-in-law, defending the President's position.

"Whatever may have happened," she said, "he is, after all, the former king of England."

The President's mother drew herself up with an air of great dignity and replied:

"I'm afraid, Eleanor, that you are completely lacking in principles!"

SINGAPORE THREAT—While U. S. cruisers are en route to Singapore for the opening of the great British naval base, mightiest bulwark of white prestige in the Orient, the Japanese are completing plans to nullify the importance of that base by cutting a canal through the isthmus of Kra in Siam.

A glance at the map will indicate how important a move this is. The isthmus and the Malay Peninsula stick out like a long finger to the south, requiring about two days extra for steamers to get around them. At the tip of the peninsula is Singapore. If the Japanese can cut a canal in the Siamese isthmus to the north, Singapore will be sitting all by itself and about as useful as a wart on a thumb.

Official reports received here are that the Siamese government has let a canal contract to the Japanese. In fact, the Japanese now dominate Siam. Whether the British will let them go through with the deal, however, is another matter.

NOTE—The King of Siam is a 14-year-old boy, Ananda Mahidol. His uncle, the King Prajadhipok who visited the United States for the removal of a cataract, abdicated in 1935.

LICKING ROOSEVELT—When the Guatemalan government issued its new stamp bearing the likeness of President Roosevelt, a Guatemalan sent one to an American friend in New York who is a rabid Republican.

With the stamp he sent a note, saying, "This is the only way you can lick President Roosevelt."

MERRY-GO-ROUND—Guatemalans believe this is the first time in history that the likeness of a living American President has been reproduced on a stamp. This is forbidden on U. S. stamps . . . Oddly enough, the Guatemalan stamps portraying the U. S. President were printed in Holland . . . Civil War cannon in national parks henceforth will be painted with genuine Civil War paint. The Interior Department has uncovered old Union and Confederate ordnance manuals with chemical formulas for paint . . . Another violent administration foe faces a hot re-election fight this year. It is Congressman Gene Cox of Georgia, who will be opposed by Ira Carlisle, Cairo, Ga., lawyer and former state senator. New Dealers are planning to send speakers into Cox's district to campaign for Carlisle . . . A new record was established by the Congressional Library last year. It lent out 1,219,518 volumes, 33,000 more than in 1936, previous record year . . . One vote for the Ludlow war-referendum resolution came from a holder of the congressional medal of honor. He is Representative Edouard Izac of Los Angeles, 1915 graduate of Annapolis, who was awarded the coveted medal for extraordinary heroism during the World War.

AFL to Expel 2 More Unions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Unless there is a last-minute change of intention, the American Federation of Labor's executive council will expel at least two CIO unions at its Miami meeting starting next Monday.

Definitely slated for the axe are John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Federation leaders are talking also of severing the last technical tie between the A. F. of L. and the CIO's Refinery and Metal Mine unions.

PLANS TO BREAK CIO

All sides agree that expulsion in itself would be unimportant. Suspension of the CIO unions a year and a half ago amounted to expulsion. As long as the CIO unions even technically remained A. F. of L. members, however, the federation could not start what it now plans—a campaign to break the CIO financially.

The United Mine Workers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers have been two of the main sources of CIO revenue.

Once these unions are expelled the federation expects to move in with unions of its own.

WOOES GARMENT UNION

Federation leaders also hope to have the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, now a CIO member, as an ally in the clothing labor war. For months they have been trying to get that union to secede from the CIO.

In addition to this strategy, the A. F. of L. is arranging for a general field campaign on all fronts against Lewis' forces.

Girl to Live After Rare Operation

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21 (INS)—The condition of Madeline Martin, 10, who had an abscessed lung removed in a rare operation Tuesday, was definitely improved today.

She spoke cheerfully to nurses through a small window in her oxygen tent. Her chances for recovery are excellent, doctors said. She is the daughter of a city street car conductor.

Radio Hard on Criminals

SEATTLE, Wash. (INS)—Criminals will have a harder time in Seattle from now on.

The police department started installation of radio sending equipment in its 23 prowler cars previously equipped with receivers.

Exam Insurance Ready For Providence Youths

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 21 (AP)—A novel system of examination insurance with the added inducement of scholastic "hot tips" was the hope held out today to Providence College students as they racked their brains at their mid-year quizzes.

The new plan has been evolved by a group of enterprising Friar seniors who have formed the "Students' Protective Insurance Co." and plan to start writing policies during the second semester.

For a premium ranging from 50 cents for freshmen to 35 cents for seniors, the company will guarantee an undergraduate's complete scholastic program for a semester. If he fails to attain the passing mark of 60, the student insurance company will assume the payment of all conditional examination fees to the college, amounting to $2 for the first try and $5 for the next two.

Following the policy of regular insurance companies which issue pamphlets on diseases, the new organization will issue a syllabus of scholastic "hot tips" for examinations to policyholders in an effort to cut down the academic "mortality" rate and lower premiums.

Printers' Strike Ends in Oregon 3 Papers

Publication Resumes; Portland 'Without News' 6 Days

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 21 (INS)—The strike of union printers which forced suspension of publication of Portland's three newspapers for six days, was at an end today.

Striking printers of the Multnomah County Typographical Union, voted 212 to 70 to accept the publishers' offer of $9 for a seven-and-a-half hour day, with $9.50 for night shifts.

The printers, however, retained the right to re-open issues that had been in dispute at any time up to July 1 for arbitration.

Wage scales accepted by the printers provide for a 45 cent per day increase over their previous scale.

The vote immediately terminated shutdown of the three dailies and the Morning Oregonian issued one edition.

The Oregon Journal and the News-Telegram, afternoon papers, were to resume publishing this afternoon.

A statement by publishers said in part:

'Jim' Roosevelt Denies Plan for Dictatorship

Pettingill Raps a Bill For Reorganization Of Government

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—President Roosevelt has no dictatorship ambitions.

Son and Secretary James Roosevelt spread that on the record today in defending the President's plan for reorganizing the executive branch of the government.

Even if it is conceded "that everyone now in Washington is as wise as Solomon and as pure as the archangels, we have to legislate with the thought that some day another Huey Long may occupy the White House."

That was the answer of Rep. Samuel Pettengill (D) of Indiana, to the proposition to increase the President's powers.

Young Roosevelt and Pettengill dissected the reorganization plan for a Town Hall audience and came out about even.

Admitting that "I know some people are seriously disturbed about this plan," Roosevelt claimed that it gives the President in reality what the office always has had in theory—genuine supervisory powers.

"No dictator in the world today had any important part in the constitutional, parliamentary or democratic government which he superseded," he asserted, in pointing out that America need not fear possibility of the President turning dictator on the basis of increased power.

Pettengill charged that under the "streamlined" government plan, the value of independent commissions would be destroyed, because the President would have power to "control the policy-forming decisions of those commissions, to reserve those he did not like and to dictate new ones."

Can't Solve Puzzle

Etta Tedeschi, 19, slim and attractive secretary in a Boston concern, failed to shed any light on the mysterious disappearance of George Woodward, 19, rich Rockland youth.

Woman, 72, Out In Cold All Night

HAVERHILL, Jan. 21 — Mrs. Martha A. Horne, 72-year-old wife of a Bradford milk dealer, was found wandering in Lowell avenue early today, apparently unharmed after a night of exposure.

A police search for the aged woman began last night after her husband, Charles A. Horne, reported her missing since 2 p. m. She left a bus at Haverhill depot but apparently failed to board a train for Ballardvale, where she planned to visit relatives.

A night in the open had more serious effects upon Michael Callahan, 54, of Tayine street, who is in a serious condition at Haverhill hospital today from exposure and frost-bite. He was found semi-conscious in a snowy field by police.

Murderer Slain In Jail Break Try

LANSING, Kas., Jan. 21 (AP)—A life-term murderer, Cecil Thornburgh, 25, lay dead in the Kansas prison morgue today, shot when eight convicts attempted to escape in a fog last night.

Another convict, shot in the abdomen, was not expected to live. A third was wounded slightly in the hip. The other five surrendered peaceably.

Mistress of Her Fate

Freedom of action has been granted to Gloria Laura Vanderbilt by New York courts. In an order submitted by consent of her mother, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, and her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the 14-year-old heiress is free to live or visit with either and to travel wherever she chooses. State Troopers Join Search For Boy, 19

Rockland Parents Ask Aid in Hunt For Student Son

State police were asked today by his parents to aid in the search for George Woodward, 19-year-old Bryant & Stratton School student, who has been missing for eight days from the home of his father, wealthy Rockland business man.

The request by the parents confirmed yesterday's exclusive story in the Boston Evening American that the youth had vanished mysteriously the night of January 13 after suddenly announcing to friends that he intended to elope.

Over the state police teletype system an alarm for Woodward was sent out today, the message stating that Woodward was believed to be with a "heavy-set" blonde girl and that the couple might be seeking temporary employment as entertainers.

PAIR DESCRIBED

At the same time it was learned, through George Breach of the Burns Detective Agency, that the Burns operatives had been requested by the Woodward parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Woodward, to conclude their investigation and withdraw.

The state police teletype message described young Woodward as six feet tall, weighing 170 pounds with light complexion and waxy, wavy hair. He plays the piano.

The girl was described as five feet 10 inches tall, heavy set, with blonde hair. The girl was named.

Meanwhile the regular "girl friend" with whom young Woodward had spent considerable of his time in the past few months could throw no light today on his absence.

GEORGE NEVER MOODY'

Nineteen-year-old Etta Tedeschi, slim and attractive secretary in a Boston ship-broker concern, described her last meeting with young Woodward, the night before he vanished, and expressed wonderment he had dropped from sight.

"I've known him—oh, so long a time," she said. "Ever since we were in high school. We've often gone out together. We went out on a date a week ago Wednesday. That was the last time I saw him. And now I find he disappeared the very next day."

"That last night—there didn't seem anything unusual about it. We talked as friends usually do. George never was a moody sort. He was a perfectly normal boy, a healthy boy, never going away by himself. He had no enemies."

12 Hurt in Mine Workers, CIO Clash

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 21 (INS)—Dispute between CIO organizers and union members working in the Murchie Mine at Nevada City resulted in injuries to at least a dozen persons before the battle was quelled by tear gas and clubs wielded by deputy sheriffs and state highway patrolmen.

The sheriff's office at Nevada City reported members of the CIO were ordered not to report to work by CIO officials and when they attempted to enter the mine yard, a truck loaded with miners was overturned.

Edward J. Neil Burial Held in Methuen

Many Pay Respect to A. P. Correspondent Killed in Spain

METHUEN, Jan. 21 (AP)—Edward J. Neil, Jr., Associated Press war correspondent, killed in Spain, was buried in a snow-covered hillside here today while church bells tolled 38, the years the writer would have lived had he reached last Monday.

His last resting place in Bellevue cemetery was made a mass of flowers, sent from many parts of the world by men with whom he had worked and others of his friends.

About 200 mourners gathered at the grave as Neil's body was carried by six of his boyhood friends from Methuen and nearby Lawrence. Bells tolled in the distance as the funeral party arrived over snow-covered roads.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES

The committal services were conducted by the Rev. John J. O'Donnell of the Guardian Angel Church of New York. He was assisted by the Rev. John B. Martin of St. Laurence's Church at Lawrence, the Rev. M. J. O'Rourke of St. Monica's parish, Methuen, the Rev. John Powers, pastor of St. Monica's, and the Rev. Marin Arconada of St. Laurence's, whose brother was killed in Spain.

Neil's widow, his father, brother and other members of the family stood near the grave during the brief but impressive services.

In the mass of flowers that surrounded the grave and formed a solid background on the hillside were tributes from foreign correspondents with whom Neil had worked in Spain and Ethiopia, newspapermen and organizations in this country, and others from figures prominent in the sports world.

NEWS WRITERS ATTEND

One floral piece directly in front of the grave carried an "AP" logotype in purple flowers against a white background.

J. Marion Kendrick of the New York office of the Associated Press accompanied the family.

Men from the Boston bureau of the Associated Press attended together with other Boston and Lawrence newspapermen.

Gloria Leaves 'Legal Cradle'

Heiress Is Now Free To Lead Own Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Gloria Laura Vanderbilt has stepped out of the legal cradle formed for her by the boundaries of New York state for the past four years.

After numerous delays Supreme Court Justice Leary today approved a joint order submitted by her mother, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, and her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, giving the 14-year-old heiress the right to live or visit with either of them and to travel wherever she chooses.

Though lawyers labored for weeks on the phrases of the releasing order, it was the will of little Gloria herself that prevailed in the final wording.

Mrs. Whitney's document read:

"Recently, Gloria asked me if instead of having her visits to her mother regulated by court order, they could be arranged informally as the circumstances might permit."

Present plans call for Gloria to make a trip to Europe with Mrs. Whitney this summer, later meeting her mother in Southern France.

How to Help Business

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

If Mr. Roosevelt really wants to help business he should turn the first floor of the White House into small stores.

We would like to have a hamburger stand in the north wing or a drugstore on the corner. Visitors to the White House average five hundred an hour and every one is an expert on something.

The trouble with business is simple. So are the experts.

Here's the way out. Compel each expert to make at least one retail purchase and the recession would be over.

Kidnaper Details His Two Murders

Killed Pal and Gray In Cave; G-Men Find Bodies, Hidden $30,000

ST. PAUL, Jan. 21 (AP)—An amazing story of kidnapings, slayings and bank robberies attributed to Peter Anders, surly lumberjack, was related today after recovery of the bodies of Charles S. Ross, abducted Chicago manufacturer, and James Atwood Gray from a cave deep in the northern Wisconsin woods.

Whisking Anders back to St. Paul after a two-day foray into the frozen fastness of Minnesota and Wisconsin, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said virtually all of the $50,000 ransom paid in vain for Ross' release had been recovered.

Anders detailed each of numerous crimes in a confession covering thousands of words, said Hoover.

Hoover said Anders had confessed kidnaping John Borcia and his wife, Olivia, of Chicago, and robbing one Minnesota and three Wisconsin banks. The Borcias were released without ransom.

FIND HIDDEN $30,000

When arrested at Santa Anita race track, Anders possessed about $14,000 of the ransom money, Hoover said. An additional $30,000 was found hidden in Minnesota.

The bodies of Ross and Gray, the latter nude, were found in a small, brush concealed cave in a desolate section 12 miles northwest of Spooner, Wis. Hoover said the killer slew Gray first and then shot the 72-year-old kidnap victim.

Anders chained the bodies in the vault-like burial place and then covered them with brush and debris said the Federal chief.

KILLED IN CHAINS

Anders was returned to the F. B. I. headquarters here about 12:30 a. m. today, handcuffed to an agent and chained about the waist and shoulder. Hoover said he would be returned to Chicago later.

Anders' confession, as given by the Federal Bureau of Investigation chief related how Ross was taken to the Minnesota hideout immediately after the kidnaping. Hoover said this den was located near a lonely side road a few miles north of Emily.

Hoover said the aged Ross who was snatched away from his secretary, Miss Florence Freihage, while driving near Chicago, was kept manacled in the unheated dungeon for about 18 days.

Indications were that the wealthy Chicagoan had undergone great suffering from the cold and from scant rations. Drawing on Anders' confession, Hoover said the abductors—in an effort to hasten ransom payment and to impress Ross' family that he still was alive—mailed a photograph of Ross reading a Chicago newspaper near the woods hiding place. The agents recovered the newspaper from which a story had been cut, together with a ransom note.

COLD-BLOODED MURDERS

"Anders and Gray clashed," said the F. B. I. chief, "and Anders knocked Gray down and shot him through the head. Apparently Ross attempted to intervene and also was knocked to the ground and while struggling there, was shot through the head and killed."

Hoover said Anders then took Gray's $20,000 share of the $50,000 ransom, along with most of the accomplice's clothing, covered the bodies with leaves and twigs and headed back into Minnesota to hide his $30,000. From there, declared Hoover, Anders began a tour of the country, finally losing from $5000 to $6000 of cash when his car was raided while parked in a garage near the Holland tunnel in New York City.

Pressed about reported attempts to link Anders with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, Hoover said:

"So far as we know there is no such connection."

State House Briefs

A report stating that the Legislature "ought to pass" on a resolve reviving the special commission investigating mental diseases in Massachusetts was made to the House of Representatives today by the ways and means committee.

The public service committee today reported favorably on a bill authorizing State Auditor Thomas N. Buckley to fix the salary of his second deputy, George Cummings, with the approval of the Governor and his Council. Under the present law, the salary is set at $3500 annually.

The committee on constitutional law today reported unfavorably on a bill which would prevent transfer of industries from one state to another because of the abatement of taxes in the inviting state.

Massachusetts cities and towns would claim reimbursement from the state for funds paid to unsettled persons, required to work for aid received, under a bill reported favorably today by the committee on public welfare.

The committee on banks and banking reported favorably the recommendation of Bank Commissioner William P. Husband for an eight-year extension of the time in which he is authorized to borrow funds for payment of dividends in closed banks.

Senator Edward C. Carroll of South Boston filed a bill in the Senate providing for appointment of 50 additional state police officers. He also filed a bill requiring retirement of employes of the state and the Metropolitan District Commission after 30 years of service, upon reaching 65 years of age.

Predict Maine To Be Dry Again

Liquor Plight Laid to Political 'Pull'

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 21—Political pressure and lax law enforcement got the blame today for liquor conditions that may put Maine back in the dry column.

Replying to a warning by Thomas F. Locke of the state liquor commission that Maine will go dry in the next election unless rum dealers clean house, Harry H. Belyea, executive secretary of the Maine Malt Beverage Association, declared:

'Time and time again our association has reported law violations to the commission and nothing has been done because of political pressure."

Belyea said there were only 17 or 18 inspectors for the whole state. Much of the responsibility for liquor sales in dry towns, Sunday sales and false labelling, of which Locke complained, should rest with lax town officials, he declared.

Colonel Kills Self for Love

Duty to Mother, 77, Barred Wedding

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 21 (INS)—Lieut.-Col. Dale F. McDonald, commanding the 3rd battalion, 17th Infantry, at Fort Leavenworth, killed himself in a fit of melancholy induced by his inability to marry. That announcement was made today by Dwight Bradley, head of the local federal agents who had been investigating the death of the 51-year-old army officer.

Colonel McDonald was found shot to death near the military reservation, a pistol beside his body.

Fellow officers revealed he had intended to wed, but was unable to do so because he had felt his duty toward his 77-year-old invalid mother came first.

Church Council Assails Hub Debut of Cleric, 7

The scheduled Boston debut of the Rev. Charles E. Jaynes, Jr.—seven years old—was assailed today by the Massachusetts Council of Churches.

Described as the "youngest minister in the world," the child preacher will appear in Mechanics Building in the afternoon and evening of January 30 under the auspices of the Calvary Temple, Brookline.

Indicating that the protest was solely from a religious point of view, Dr. Frank Jennings, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Council of Churches, declared:

PROCEDURE QUESTIONED

"I have no axe to grind. The wisdom of asking an immature child to engage in the exacting business of preaching is open to serious question.

"From the standpoint of the welfare of the child, as well as the permanent value to those who attend the meeting, many church people seriously question this kind of procedure."

Reports from the mid-West state that the Jaynes boy, ordained last July, has thrilled thousands with his sermons. He has been preaching since he was three years old, it was said.

The "world's youngest preacher" usually stands on a chair while delivering his sermons, clapping his hands and pounding his fists on the rostrum to emphasize certain points.

He usually wears a knee-length black velvet suit, trimmed with white collar and cuffs, anklets and white shoes. His hair is in a Dutch bob.

Freighter Crew Hunger at Sea In Storm

British Sailor Tells of His Attempt to Eat Soup

By ROBERT L. GREEN

How would you like to eat your supper on a subway train hanging to a strap? You'll admit it would take some dexterity to spoon down a plate of chicken soup or carve up a bit of roast.

Well this analogy only weakly approaches the difficulties that beset the officers and members of the crew of the British freighter Troilus which arrived in this port recently.

Some hundreds of miles north of Boston the freighter, from Mediterranean and Near East ports, ran full into a 90 mile an hour gale that buffeted the ship about for several days.

After several attempts at eating his supper served under the most trying circumstances one of the officers was forced to wedge himself into the corner of his tiny cabin and hold onto the bunk strap in order to eat.

Twice hot bowls of soup bathed him from head to foot as the ship pitched wildly in the mountainous seas. After the storm he was a whole day retrieving bits of a lamb chop from unsuspected parts of the cabin.

Several of the Troilus' steam lines were smashed and lifeboats were knocked from their supporting chocks by the force of the heavy seas.

• • •

So great has been the attraction for vagabond cruises in the past years that passenger freighters, chiefly those of the round the world type, have had no difficulty in filling their limited passenger accommodations.

But passengers at sea on a freighter differ not a whit, it would seem from passengers on a large liner in that they like their fun.

Posted conspicuously in the passenger quarters on the Javanese Prince now unloading a large cocoanut oil cargo at East Boston is a notice which reads in substance:

"It is very important that the officers of this ship upon whom the passengers, the crew and the ship depend for their safety should have the proper rest and not be kept awake at unlikely hours . . . The chief steward is available until 9 p. m. for passenger requirements . . . Rooms of the officers are private . . . etc., etc."

It would appear then that there is now a 9 o'clock curfew at sea, at least on freight ships.

Trucker Accuses Ex-Mayor Irwin

A truckman testified to paying Ex-mayor John H. Irwin of Medford $45 for a city job in 1935 as Ex-mayor John H. Burke opened his defense today against Irwin's $75,000 damage suit in Middlesex Superior Court.

Joseph E. English, the truckman, told the court Irwin, while mayor, approached him and said:

"I ought to be getting something out of this."

"How about $10 every three days?" English said he replied.

"That will be all right," was the mayor's response, according to testimony.

Irwin, on the stand in his own behalf in his suit charging a campaign circular by Burke damaged his reputation falsely, denied ever taking money for city jobs, as the circular alleged. He said all the city property he ever used in his home was a section of a condemned boiler.

Mother Hunts Hit-Run Driver

Offers to Take Girl To Hospital, Flees

Spurred by a mother's plea, police of Roxbury Crossing station today sought a motorist who knocked down a seven-year-old Roxbury girl and fled after telling the child's mother to put on her coat and go with him to a hospital with the injured child.

The girl, Sally Burt of Columbus avenue, was struck and thrown eight feet while crossing the street in front of her home. She suffered bruises to her back and leg.

"He ought to be caught!" the child's mother declared today after reporting the incident to police.

"He might do the same thing again. It's a wonder my little girl wasn't hurt more seriously."

A passerby provided police with the first three numbers of the fleeing motorist's license plate.

Bradley in Plea To Sales Tax Foes

Boston Realtor Points to Load Placed On Home Owners

R. M. Bradley, prominent Boston real estate man, today urged opponents of the proposed State sales tax to "consider carefully what our whole situation really is" before attempting to block the measure.

Asserting that the fallacy of the present system is that we "have been trying to pile all the costs of government onto real estate," Bradley wrote as follows:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN:

During the last year a committee has been working on behalf of the people of our state to see what can be done to revise our present tax system. There is every reason to believe that they have done their work faithfully and well and have considered what we are up against and the pros and cons of every way out. Before the report has been given out one item of its recommendations has been made public; namely, a sales tax.

Following this, there has been a hasty condemnation of any such tax from Mr. P. A O'Connell, president of the retail trade board.

OFFERS NO ALTERNATIVE

Mr. O'Connell considers a sales tax an undesirable thing, and in this he will find himself in agreement with all of us, for all taxes are undesirable. Barring what some of us consider beneficent protection, and some do not, there is no tax that is not an undisputed evil, but, likewise, there is no tax that is not also a choice of evils.

Where Mr. O'Connell makes his mistake is in coming out hastily with objections to a sales tax without waiting to listen to any reasons why a tax like this may be less of an evil to himself, to his fellow merchants, and to the community at large, than any alternative that can be worked out in our present emergency. He, himself, offers no alternative.

For there is an emergency that, if not met, is going to bring far greater evils than a sales tax.

Mr. O'Connell's fellow merchants depend upon their customers' ability to buy and, if they destroy that ability, they cannot prosper. That ability is being destroyed when a large part of their customers are being ruined, and it will be still farther impaired if we come out of our present crisis with a broken and impaired community due to failure to meet actual conditions with courage and justice. Contribution to any such failure would be a heavy responsibility.

COSTS PILED ON REALTY

We are all tied together and have been trying to pile all costs of government onto real estate. If, by so doing, millions of real estate credit continues to be wiped out to the ruin of thousands, if thousands of homes continue to be foreclosed, if thousands of business men, who might start more pay rolls, continue to have their loans called and are thus crippled; if the building trade, our greatest industry, continues to be stopped, and if its thousands of workmen, and more thousands still in the supply business, continue to be thrown out of employment to swell the rolls of relief; if our cities' borrowing powers are brought to an end, and if drastic, and all but inhuman, slashing of public pay rolls becomes imperative; if all this continues to go on, or comes more plainly in sight, will it improve the family budgets, about which Mr. O'Connell is so solicitous, and will the absence of a vexatious sales tax be a sufficient compensation for Mr. O'Connell and his fellow merchants, or for the rest of us?

We are all tied together, and no part of us can prosper from the ruin of the other part. Let us, therefore, not go off at half-cock, but carefully consider what our whole situation really is. When we get the report let us put to ourselves the question, not whether we like the conclusions of this report but, what alternative there may be to what it recommends.

Grange Leader Hits Sales Tax Proposal

Asks Body Condemn Plan at Today's Sessions

More than 45,000 members of the Massachusetts Grange condemned the proposed 2 per cent sales tax today following an address by Everett W. Stone of Auburn, master of the Massachusetts State Grange.

Stone termed the proposed legislation as "cruel and needless" and a burden on state-wide industry and farming in an address to 500 members of the Massachusetts Agricultural Fairs Association at the Hotel Brunswick.

He called on members to adopt a resolution condemning the sales tax at its executive session today. Included among the audience were many members of the legislature.

"This subject of sales tax is one of growing importance to all the voters," Stone declared.

"From what I read about it, it looks as if Massachusetts were going to 'sale' right out into the Atlantic. I think it is high time that red-blooded men and women and officials consider the full import of these extra taxes that are appearing on the horizon."

Stone declared he was a real estate man, but insisted that the sales tax offered no lasting remedy for high taxes on real estate.

"I hope all members of the legislature will consider the seriousness of this situation and use the voters and the farmers as they should be used. Although I am a real estate man, I personally want to see fewer taxes on agriculture and industry."

Trolley Accident Investigated

Investigation into cause of a broken trolley wire that threw 115 persons aboard a Tremont street Boston Elevated car into a panic, injuring 11 and shaking up a score more, was under way today.

The accident tied up street car traffic in Tremont street, South End, for nearly an hour.

Passengers showed no concern at first when the trolley wore broke, plunging the car into darkness, but a minute later when broken ends of the wire began sputtering against the car windows, panic broke out.

The injured were taken to City Hospital and treated for lacerations and bruises. Others received a shaking up but did not go to the hospital.

'Poverty' Victim Leaves $250,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Disposition of the $250,000 fortune of Mrs. Johanna Von Meyer, 86, who died in apparent poverty here, was revealed today by her attorney.

Her will bequeaths $15,000 each to two nieces, Mrs. Helena Lawrence, of Santa Paola, Calif. and Miss Ella Richter, of Tenafly, N. J. with the remainder going to charity.

Bankbooks and papers revealing her unsuspected wealth were found in her squalid flat. In her trunks were faded flowers, opera capes and opera programs, relics of bygone pomp.

Mother Advised To Spank Son, 31

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Mark Gillen, of Brooklyn, is 31, but his mama was advised to spank him if he comes home again on a spree.

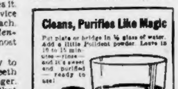
Magistrate Nicholas H. Pinto gave the advice today when Mark's parents had been haled into court on a disorderly conduct charge. He broke glass out of the front door of the Gillen home.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities . . . Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.



Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

Worsted Goods Trade Gains in Employment

Survey by State Shows Drop in the Cotton And Shoe Lines

Woolen and worsted goods was the only major industry in Massachusetts to show gains in employment and payrolls during December, the State Department of Labor and Industries revealed today.

In its monthly survey of state employment and payrolls in 1750 manufacturing firms, the state department disclosed that the woolen and worsted goods industry showed a 2.4 per cent gain in employment and 10.1 per cent in payrolls as compared with November.

Other statistics revealed were:

A 4.4 per cent rise in payrolls and a 11.1 per cent drop in employment in the silk and rayon goods industry.

DROP IN SHOE WORK

A 4.4 percent drop in employment and 0.5 per cent gain in payrolls in the boot and shoe industry.

A .41 per cent drop in payrolls and a 7.6 drop in employment in the cotton goods industry.

The report stated that the December index for all industries reached the lowest point since the middle of 1935.

CHANGES IN PAYROLLS

A drop of 5.4 per cent, in employment and 6 per cent in payrolls in December, as compared with November, was revealed in the composite average for manufacturers.

Major payroll changes during December included:

Haverhill, up 12.3 per cent.; Brockton, up 7.6 per cent.; Lynn, down 7.8 per cent.; Worcester, down 12.8 per cent.; Fitchburg, up 2.1 per cent.; Peabody, up 2.8 per cent.; Lawrence, up 1.4 per cent.; Lowell, down 1 per cent.; Fall River, down 3.3 per cent.; New Bedford, down 5.4 per cent.; and Springfield, down 3.4 per cent.

Shirt Mends Hose at Fire

Tearing off his shirt to mend a leak in a hose line, Fire Lieutenant Ralph Fields today prevented flames from spreading in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Higgins of Adams street, Lynn.

Flames swept the living-room followdwing the explosion of an oil heater. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Mrs. Higgins and her son, Delmar, 19, were driven to the street. The woman, runninig outside, met her husband coming home to lunch and he turned in the alarm.

Meanwhile, the son ran back into the house to rescue the family pet cat, "Snooky."

Five on 4th Day Without Sleep

Students Face Test Of 48 More Hours

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 21—Five tired University of Georgia students today entered their fourth day without sleep—with two more days to go before reaching 100 sleepless hours in the interest of science.

The experiment, which all termed "a lot of fun" is being made to show the effect of sleepiness on mind, body and behavior.

Dr. A. S. Edwards, 52, head of the psychology department, said the experiment was purely scientific and that it might have practical applications in showing the effect on persons who drive automobiles for 30 or more hours without sleeping.

"I feel like I was walking on air," was the description given by Saidee Hodgson of Athens, Ga., after 60 hours without sleep. She said she had lost two pounds.

Robert Schnautz of Port Chester, N. Y., said his appetite was better than ever.

'World Conquest, Japan's Goal'

KNICKERBOCKER SAYS TOKYO PREPARING TO STRIKE NEXT AT ENGLAND, U. S.

archives. It deserves further consideration, as it appears to be little known. It must be an additional worry for his imperial majesty, because he has constantly to deal with three schools of thought among his subjects.

One believes it would be best to strike first the Soviet Union, then England, then America. Another favors knocking out England first, then the Soviet Union, then America. A third prefers to take on America first, then the Soviet Union, then England.

Two considerations at present impede the Japanese scholars of war from putting their program into practice. The first is that the three schools are constantly quarreling among themselves. The second is that a few in each school occasionally wonder if their appointed victims will allow themselves to be picked off one by one.

SISSIES AND TRAITORS

These few, however, are known as sissies.

Power in Japan is divided among the navy, the army, and the business world. The navy is divided between those who want to destroy England first, and those who prefer to wipe out first the American fleet. The army is divided between those who wish to strike now at the Soviet Union and those who wish to strike later.

The business world is divided between those who are making money out of the present war and want more of it, and those who are losing money and want no more war. The last are known as traitors.

No victims of future aggression have ever been so fully warned by the aggressor as the western powers have been warned by Japanese spokesmen. Yet there are still optimists in the western world who refuse to believe what the Japanese tell them.

Each new attack by the Japanese armed forces on western nationals reduces the number of western optimists, and even the implacably cheerful Times of London now admits that the incidents show that the Japanese crusaders are, whether instinctively or deliberately, bent on the exclusion of the white powers from China."

FORECAST OF WAR

America, however, always buoyant, still leads perhaps in the number of persons resolved to believe the best and willing to accept the Tokyo foreign office's assurance that Admiral Suetsugu, minister of the interior and candidate for the premiership of Nippon, was wrongly quoted when he declared in a Japanese political review:

"The commercial interests of the whites must disappear before the sun of the Nipponese mission. The yokes of the whites over the yellow must disappear. Of course, a rapid emancipation will mean a general conflagration, but let there be no misunderstanding, the result will be the same, a general conflagration. So fate decrees."

Such a placid forecast of Japan's intention to make war by one of the men who, in the cabinet of the government, would be among those to decide to make war, brought pressing inquiries to the Tokyo foreign office.

"No," the foreign office declared with the simplicity of utter truth, "no, he did not say it."

DENY ABSOLUTE FACTS

This method of denial staggers the newcomer to the East. Once during the Japanese press conference in Shanghai the question arose whether Japanese war planes were flying over the settlement in violation of law and their own agreement. The official Japanese spokesman said:

"No, they have not done so."

Just then we heard low-flying planes. Everybody looked out the window, saw the rising sun of Japan on the wings of bombers directly over our headquarters in the heart of the settlement.

"No," said the Japanese spokesman, "they are not Japanese, and if they were, they are not flying over the settlement."

Not a man cracked a smile. We simply wondered if we had lost our senses.

It is easy to dismiss the type of Chauvinistic literature against the whites which constantly appears in Japan under titles like "The Imminence of a Japano-American War," by Lieut. General Sato, or "An Anglo-Japanese War Is Inevitable" by Mr. Ikezaki, or "Will Japan and the Soviet Union Fight?" by Mr. Uehara, and finally even "Japan's War Against the White World" by anonymous patriots.

But what of the authenticated pronouncements of Japan's greatest leaders, beginning with the memorial submitted by Premier Tanka to the emperor in 1927 and ending with this month's declaration by Admiral Suetsugu, and all speaking the same language?

It is difficult to dismiss a program which, like Premier Tanaka's, has been carried out to date with the precision of a railway timetable. I have a copy of his famous memorial. In it he declares:

"In order to conquer the world, we must first conquer China. If we succeed in conquering China, the rest of the Asiatic countries and the South Seas will fear us and surrender. This is the plan left to us by Emperor Meiji, the success of which is essential to our national existence."

"What next?"

PLANS OUT IN OPEN

Because it is less known, though equally important, the Honjo-Minami memorial to the emperor, submitted at the outset of the conquest of Manchuria in 1931, is even more interesting. It declares:

"We all agree that the revival of China, the rise of the Soviet Union, and the intrusion of the United States of America into the western Pacific are in fundamental conflict with the national policy of our empire."

Happily this memorial proceeds to state that after the conquest of China:

"We must invade Siberia up to Lake Baikal and compel Russia to give up all the territory east of the Lena River, so that the Far Eastern Republic may be revived according to our direction.

"Once free from any maritime attack on our North and West, our navy will be able to concentrate on the South and East. Having China and Eastern Siberia, with their rich resources, under our control, our empire will be a first-class power, secure and invulnerable, like a city of metal surrounded by water.

"It is safe to predict that after ten years of exploitation of such vast resources, the wealth of our empire can be compared favorably with that of the United States of America, all other nations falling a long way behind.

"With such financial power and material resources, our empire can easily maintain an army equal to that of Russia and China combined, and at the same time build a navy equal to that of England and America together.

"To hold the supremacy of the western Pacific, we need only drive the Americans to the east of Hawaii, and expel the English from Singapore.

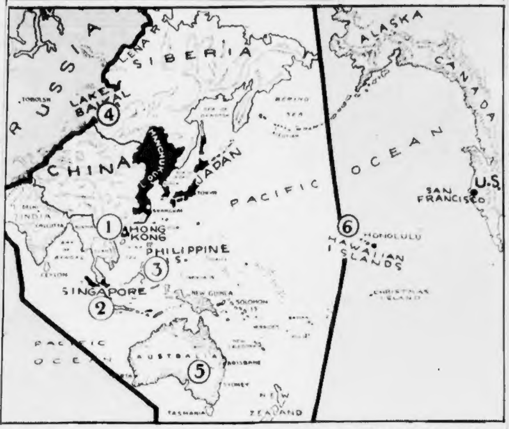
"Not only China, but also the Dutch East Indies, Australia and New Zealand will be accessible to us. Now Russia and China are still in the reconstruction stage, weak and divided. With our invincible army we can easily crush any opposition.

"But if we wait until China is fully unified under Chiang-Kai-Shek's ambitious plan, or until after the completion of Russia's economic program, the realization of our hopes may become impossible."

Another article in H. R. Knickerbocker's dramatic series on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings" will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Empire

Dreams of Nippon Militarists



Most authorities believe Japan's plan for domination of the East includes complete subjugation of China to be followed by an attempt to oust British from Hongkong and Singapore (2). The Philippines (3) would next be acquired and the frontiers of Soviet Russia (1) pushed back by the invasion of Siberia up to Lake Baikal (4) before proceeding against Australia (5), and stopping only at the Hawaiian Islands (6). Thus the Japs plan to drive the Americans out of Hawaii and the British out of Hongkong and Singapore. This map shows the area affected. The figures indicate the order in which the various steps are to be taken.

Stalin's Cousin Jailed in Italy

ROME, Jan. 21 (INS)—Fascist Italy's strained relations with Soviet Russia today developed two new sore spots:

1—Premier Mussolini's secret police proclaimed destruction of a large-scale Soviet spy plot led by a Russian engineer reputed to be a cousin of Dictator Stalin.

2—Il Duce's foreign office issued a blast against Russia's recent action suspending all commercial payments due Italy and admitted that matters between Rome and Moscow are "difficult."

The alleged Soviet espionage conspiracy, it was announced, was smashed with the court conviction of the purported ringleader, Gregor Grigorieff, and 13 confederates.

Grigorieff, rumored to be Stalin's cousin, was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment. The spy conspiracy was apparently aimed primarily to obtain information concerning Italy's vast munitions industry.

'Repeater' Worst Highway Menace

Causes 36 Per Cent Of Accidents, Says Harvard Expert

Biggest menace of the highway, according to Dr. Harry R. De Silva of Harvard, is not the average driver but the "accident repeater."

Two years of research in the Harvard bureau for street traffic research have shown, Dr. DeSilva said today, that less than five per cent of all drivers cause more than 36 per cent of all accidents.

These figures were announced today for the first time coming as the result of investigation in 15 state motor vehicle departments and in a clinic at Harvard led by Dr. DeSilva.

TWO TYPES IN CLASS

Among the young "accident-repeater" class there were two types, DeSilva said. They were the sons of rich men, to whom smashing up a car meant almost nothing, and those who never owned cars of their own. Both were socially irresponsible.

Elderly drivers are more apt to become involved in accidents than others, because their reactions are often slower and their vision and other senses sometimes impaired.

Women in general are as good as men at driving unless they learn late in life.

"The reason, possibly," De Silva said, "is that a considerable portion of the male population continues to keep itself in good athletic condition up to the 40's or 50's, whereas women, as the result of confinement to housework, do not keep their muscles in as good shape to perform the functions necessary in operating an automobile.

PAYS TO LEARN YOUNG

"One of the characteristics manifested by middle-aged women in learning to drive is fear of losing control of the car. Indications of this are tight gripping of the steering wheel, unnecessary returning of the right hand to the steering wheel between gear-shifting and rigid forward position of the body. All of these facts indicate it pays to learn to drive while young."

In the favor of women drivers according to DeSilva, it can be said that they drive slowly and generally more cautiously than men and profit from back seat observation of hubby and brother at the wheel.

"Women are, in general, as good auto drivers as men," Doctor Harry De Silva of the Harvard Bureau of Street Traffic Research, points out. Jap 'Lawrence' Maps Indirect China Rule

Doihara Setting Up Puppet Regime for Nation's Center

SHANGHAI, Jan. 21 (AP)—Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria" was reported today to be setting up a puppet regime to govern the conquered heart of China.

Chinese sources declared Lieutenant-General Kenji Doihara, political manipulator for the Japanese army, whose efforts launched the dismemberment of Manchuria and North China, was bringing in "acceptable" northern Chinese to rule the Shanghai and Nanking area.

"I don't think General Doihara is in Shanghai at present," said the Japanese military spokesman.

But Chinese asserted he had established headquarters at the New Asia Hotel, rendezvous of high Japanese commanders and political advisers.

KEPT CHINA IN TURMOIL

Doihara's undercover work had been credited with keeping China in turmoil during the decade preceding the present hostilities.

Although slowed by snow, sleet and cold, the Japanese column advancing north from Nanking was said to be approaching Pengpu, halfway mark on the drive toward Suchow, junction of the Tsinpu railway and the Lunghai, China's east-west lifeline.

Mingkwang, southeast of Pengpu, was said to have changed hands twice in the fighting.

Far to the northwest, Outer Mongolian troops, allied with Soviet Russia, were reported in Japanese dispatches to be preparing a heavily-manned defense line along the Mongolian border, facing North China areas conquered by Japan.

JAPS DISPLACE BOARD

The Japanese-sponsored government at Nanking is taking over activities of the International relief committee composed of American missionaries and German businessmen, a Japanese embassy spokesman revealed today.

These activities include caring for 250 refugees in Nanking, most of them inside the committee's established refugee zone.

Peabody Fights 'Secession'

PEABODY, Jan. 21 — Mayor James E. McVann today marshalled all city forces to combat a secession of residents of outlying sections who have petitioned for annexation to Lynn.

"I will fight this move with every power in my command," the mayor declared. "Lynn residents seem to be fostering this thing and I'm going to make them regret it," he added.

Representative Fred Hutchinson of Lynn already has filed a bill for some of the Peabody complainants who seek the change. The sections under dispute include about 240 acres which comprise the Lake Shore Park, [illegible] and Rockdale areas.

Rumanian Order Bars All Rabbis Not Citizens

BUCHAREST, Jan. 21 (AP)—Orders, which in their effect may deprive many synagogues of rabbis, were issued today by the anti-Semitic administration of Premier Octavian Goga.

Provincial and municipal authorities were instructed not to renew residence permits for rabbis unless they held Rumanian citizenship.

The order is expected to affect many Jewish communities because Rumania, with upward of a million Jews, has few native rabbis.

In another respect, however the government eased anti-Semitic pressure. Enforcement of an order prohibiting Christian maids under 40 from serving in Jewish households was delayed until April 1 so as not to aggravate unemployment.

The government instructed state theatres to participate in the "Rumania for Rumanians" movement, and in presentations to "instruct the people."

The National Theater here planned production of an old Rumanian piece, "Bloodsucker of the Villages," not produced for decades. It deals with a Jewish character who swindling peasants.

New disorders occurred before the palace of justice when Christian lawyers forced out Jewish lawyers.

Goga's cabinet, less than a month old and facing a test in general elections in March, took further steps to aid poor peasants, authorizing sugar factories to sell semi-refined sugar in villages, and cutting sugar taxes to effect price reductions.

Goga left the cabinet session for a meeting of the supreme war council, but there was no official comment on reports that France and Czechoslovakia temporarily had suspended fulfillment of Rumanian war supply orders.

Premier Goga, presumably in consequence of complaints to the League of Nations, decided to send Foreign Minister Istrate Micescu to London to defend his nationalist regime.

Rebels Renew Teruel Drive

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, Jan. 21 (INS)—Heavy fighting raged along the Teruel front in eastern Spain today as the insurgents renewed their bid for the strategic city.

Insurgents claimed they were gaining ground and that the Nationalist airplanes were playing a major role in the campaign.

Meanwhile possibility of vigorous British action was seen following the killing of four British seamen and the wounding of seven when their ship was attacked by an insurgent plane at Tarragona.

Chinese Ask U.S. Deny Jap Credit

SHANGHAI, Jan. 21 (INS)—Chinese organizations today appealed to the United States to refuse reported Japanese requests for credit.

The appeal was contained in a petition delivered to U.S. Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Hankow.

The document was signed by leaders of bankers', students', seamen's, women's and other organizations throughout China.

Chinese sources, meanwhile, claimed that Chiang Kai-Shek's counter-attacking troops have completely surrounded the port of Wuhu, held by the Japanese.

A Hankow dispatch said the fall of Wuhu, 125 miles above Nanking, is expected momentarily. Such a development would prove a staggering blow to Japan's campaign in the middle Yangtze valley.

Many Boycotts Worry Japan

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service.)

TOKYO, Jan. 21—Organized boycotts against Japan in consequence of her military campaign in China are already proving highly effective and are becoming a source of concern to Japanese business men, an International News Service canvass of the situation revealed today.

Reports are constantly received in Tokyo from London and Washington regarding world-wide labor drives to make the boycott and other economic measures against Japan effective, with the aim of forcing a halt in her conquest of China.

So serious has the situation here become, that 14 leading exporting firms here revealed to International News Service that virtually their only business today is "handling cancellations" of orders.

Foreign bank branches reported an unprecedented drop in export orders.

Healey Would Tax Federal Salaries

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21—Under an amendment proposed by Rep. Healy (D.), Massachusetts, the federal government would be empowered to tax salaries paid by the states and the states to tax federal salaries.

The amendment also would permit the federal government to tax securities issued by the states and the states to tax federal securities.

Four in Florida Senate Seat Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 21—A four-cornered race for the Senate seat now held by Claude Pepper was seen today with the announcement of Dave Sholtz, former Governor of Florida, that he would be a candidate.

In the field beside Pepper and Sholtz are J. Mark Wilcox, fourth district congressman and Finley Moore of Lake City.

France Defenses On War Basis

PARIS, Jan. 21 (AP)—France today decreed centralization of all her army, naval and air forces under the defense ministry, a measure usually adopted only in wartime.

The co-ordination measure, voted last night, was signed by President Albert Lebrun during a meeting of the government before Chautemps presented his Cabinet to Parliament for approval.

Plan Air Squadron Transfer to Hawaii

HAMILTON FIELD, Calif., Jan. 21—The entire 31st bombardment squadron of 12 planes, 20 officers and 150 men will be transferred shortly to Hawaii in a further move to strengthen air defenses of the islands.

The personnel with their families will sail from here Feb. 1 aboard the army transport Republic, army authorities revealed today.

Unaware House Afire

NORTH WILBRAHAM, Jan. 21—Gustave Westling was thawing out pipes in the cellar and was unaware the upper floors of his home were on fire until neighbors rushed in and helped him to safety.

Plot to Blow Up Jap Ships Probed in Seattle

SEATTLE, Jan. 21 (AP)—A bizarre story of an Oriental plot to blow up ships loaded in American ports with scrap iron and war materials for Japan was checked by authorities today, while steamships in Seattle harbor were warned be beware of a home-made floating bomb.

Police Captain Marshall Scrafford said George Partridge, 22-year-old Canadian, reported "Orientals" had employed him and Rolphe M. Forsyth, school teacher of Vancouver, B. C., to dynamite the ships. He said he did not know the nationality of the "Orientals."

Forsyth drowned in an attempt, Partridge said, to blow up the Japanese liner Hiye Maru, first objective of the plot.

DIES IN ATTEMPT

He said he last saw Forsyth early yesterday splashing into the numbing waters of Elliott Bay, pushing a railroad tie to which was lashed a suitcase loaded with explosives.

"I'll do it or die in the attempt!" Partridge said Forsyth exclaimed before swimming toward the Hiye Maru, berthed at Pier 40.

Forsyth's nude body, clad only in a lifejacket, was found by a Japanese seaman. A coroner's inquest decided Forsyth drowned.

Patridge, arrested as a suspected box car thief, unfolded the bombing story when Forsyth's body was found. At noon he said the Hiye Maru was to be blown up by a time bomb set for 1:30 p. m., yesterday.

CAN'T FIND BOMBS

A mad scramble ensued as police rushed to the pier to warn persons away.

The Hiye Maru was moved 300 yards from the wharf. There was no explosion. Divers failed to find any trace of the bomb-laden suitcase.

Harbor shipping was warned. Experts said most types of dynamite would still be explosive 48 hours after exposure to water.

Clint Harley, Seattle business man who identified Forsyth's body, described him as an "idealist," a "cultured gentleman of the finest type—a superb athlete and gifted scholar."

Principal Reason Why Many Girls Run Away

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It's a father this time who asks the age-old question. His daughter has left home and the Bureau of Missing Persons has been unable to find any trace of her.

Now he wonders if the fault is his.

In his letter, which is too long to print, he wrote:

> "Perhaps I was a little strict, because I tried to be mother as well as father. My wife and I were divorced, and the little girl was given to me by the court. Her mother was a beautiful woman and I loved her. But she left me to lead her own life.
>
> "If my daughter should happen to see this, I hope she will come back home, no matter what may have happened, and she will find that her father still loves her devotedly."

This man feels that his daughter may have left home because he had been a little bit strict. He might, I believe, absolve himself from that accusation. Not often do girls leave home because a really loving parent "is a little strict."

IT'S ONLY WHEN SEVERITY IS JOINED WITH DOWNRIGHT UNKINDNESS AND AN UTTER LACK OF UNDERSTANDING THAT THEY RUN AWAY.

Perhaps you may have read of some of the findings of a recent conference on crime control, which discussed the causes of adolescent delinquency.

WRONG TRAINING

One authority, in discussing the question of missing girls, said that they left home on account of faulty education. And that the parents were largely to blame because, instead of giving their daughters some proper knowledge of the "facts of life," they were off trying to borrow a little long-past youth by having affairs of their own, which if true, is a terrible indictment of modern fathers and mothers.

In the case of this girl, regarding whose disappearance the father has written me, the trouble may have been that she inherited too much from the mother who left home to lead her own life rather than from the father, who did his best and who accuses himself of being a little strict.

This girl's craving for excitement and adventure was probably at the bottom of her disappearance. SHE WANTED TO LIVE AT TOP SPEED, DASH ABOUT IN HIGH-POWERED CARS, GO TO NIGHT CLUBS, ROADHOUSES AND BE THE LIFE OF THE PARTY.

Goodness only knows for how many generations this wild strain may have been bubbling in the distaff side of her inheritance. Or, again, she may have loved not wisely but too well and could not bear to confide in the parent who tried to be "both mother and father."

But whatever was the cause, here's hoping that she may see this and understand something of her father's unhappiness and willingness to overlook everything because he loves her so much.

Every Toot Costs Only Pound of Coal

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (INS)—The widespread belief that it costs the railroad 75 cents every time the engineer whistles for a crossing is erroneous, an estimate made by David B. Emmons, Union Pacific fireman, showed. Emmons said he figured that the average toot lasts about seven seconds and uses only slightly more than one pound of coal. That makes each toot cost about one-eighth of a cent.

New Youth for Face Muscles

BETTY GRABLE exercises to keep her buoyant loveliness eternally stream-lined . . . a favorite of hers is jumping rope . . . but she knows how to regulate exercise to its fullest benefit, never beyond. And the same holds true with facial exercise . . . which can keep a face youthful and mobile . . . or add devastating lines if bad expression habits aren't quelled.

Lotion Tones and Uplifts To Fresh Beauty

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU'VE seen lovely old ladies with cheeks like apple blossoms and skin as firm and sound as the flesh of an apple . . . they'd be eternally young . . . almost . . . if the underlying muscles retained their youthful resiliency and lifted the still-beautiful complexion to heights of perfection!

It's rare as a June without a moon . . . to find anything in the world of beauty that aims potent aid not at the surface of your skin, but the very scaffolding itself! That's why an extraordinary liquid muscle firming preparation is unique among beautifiers, and brings sound hope and promise with it!

With so many bad facial expression habits on all sides, it's truly a wonder that we're not all hags before our time. What—in the name of expressiveness and mobility—a gal won't do to her face in these days of imitative Hepburns and Simone Simons is a caution. She uses all her something-over-fifty-in-number muscles to the advantage of wrinkles and sagging half-moons, so that age lines overtake her long before schedule!

* * *

Correcting expression habits is a little chore that in itself won't get you too far along in keeping facial muscles bounding with life. You should, once you've touched the twenty-five mark, use the creation of a famous New York beautician which will give your facial muscles a work-out as often as it's needed.

It exercises, tones and stimulates the muscles of the face . . . so that even the swift pendulum of birthdays gives you no pause at all in the happiest round of living and laughing you've ever known. Confidence in your hold on beauty will do this for you!

* *

It's the network of muscles all around and under your jaw that relaxes and falls down on the job . . . this is exactly where the muscle-firming lotion action is intended to do its best work. And to help it there is included an attractive little chin strap.

Smooth tissue cream all over the jaw, chin and neck, saturate a cotton pad with the firming lotion and place it under the whole chin, then tie it on with the strap. Twenty to thirty minutes is all the treatment requires. And how often you use it depends on how early in life you start it!

For all further information on the muscle-rebuilding outfit of toner and strap, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hoarse Voice May Signify Trouble

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A correspondent wishes to know about hoarseness. She suffered from this affliction for several months. At first she thought it was the result of a cold, but even though the cold has cleared up, the annoying symptom has persisted.

Hoarseness is a symptom which must not be neglected. It may follow an infection of the larynx due to the germs of a cold.

It is also a common complaint of speakers, orators and singers who have strained their voices. But let me point out that it may be a symptom, too, of some serious involvement of the larynx. For example, it may be one of the first signs of tuberculosis, syphilis or cancer of the vocal cords.

Of course, I do not mean to imply that hoarseness is always a sign of one of these dreaded diseases. As a matter of fact, it rarely is. Most cases are traced to neglected colds. But persistence of hoarseness is something that demands careful investigation.

CAREFUL EXAMINATION

Doctors are quite aware of the significance of persistent hoarseness. They have been trained to consider it one of the early signs of cancer of the larynx. Of course, the diagnosis of this condition can only be made by a careful examination of the throat. Other signs and symptoms are present, but, unfortunately, they, too, are often overlooked. Bear in mind that our strongest weapon against any disease, especially cancer, is early recognition of the true nature of the disorder.

Good Manners

SEATS AT TABLE

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Our club is to give an informal luncheon at which there will be a guest of honor. Should the hostess sit at the head of the table? In relation to her, where should the guest of honor be seated?

E.

Yes, the hostess should sit at the head of the table, and on her right would be the guest of honor.

Good Gravy Real Art, So Martha Gives Tips

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER WMEX

"I CAN'T make good gravy," is a common complaint.

Investigation invariably shows that too little time and thought is put into the making of gravy.

Poor gravy falls into one of the following classes; namely, lumpy gravy, "raw" gravy, greasy gravy and improperly seasoned gravy.

To eliminate the first fault takes care. Lumps are formed in gravy when the flour is added to the fat or when the liquid is added to the roux (mixture of fat and flour).

If you unwisely "dump" the flour into the fat and start to cook the roux before the flour has been completely blended with the fat you will have lumps in the gravy. The flour should be worked into the fat a little at a time until a smooth roux is formed. Then the fat and flour mixture is cooked until it is browned.

• • •

While you are stirring the mixture get all of the particles of browned juice that have collected on the side of the pan down into the roux. Hot water is added slowly to the fat and flour mixture, stirring constantly.

When you are stirring a sauce be sure to stir over the entire bottom surface of the pan.

Cook and stir the gravy over a low flame for five to ten minutes. One of the reasons that women are apt to uncook gravy is because it must be made at the last minute and after the meat is taken up. You can cut down the cooking time by browning the flour for the gravy in a small tin in the oven. Then the browned partly cooked flour is added to the fat and it is not necessary to cook the gravy more than five minutes.

• • •

Greasy gravy is not only unhealthful but unpalatable to look at and eat so care should be taken to skim off any excess fat in the bottom of the pan. If there is too much fat for the amount of gravy that you wish to make, carefully skim off the fat with a tablespoon and save it to make gravy with some time when you have cooked a very lean piece of meat and don't have enough fat.

Gravies are seasoned according to the taste of your family. After the gravy is done salt and pepper are added to taste. Flavor may be added by using water for liquid which the vegetables have been cooked in or tomato juice.

If onions, green peppers, carrots or tomatoes are added to the meat while it is cooking they will also lend a very fine flavor to the gravy. Worcestershire sauce, Tabasco sauce, A1 sauce, celery salt and cooking wines add highly desirable flavor to gravies.

WHITE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper

Melt butter, add flour mixed with seasonings, stir until well blended. Pour on milk gradually, while stirring constantly. Bring to boiling point. Boil 2 minutes.

VELOUTE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup Veal or Chicken stock
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup cream
Few grains pepper

Melt butter, add flour and seasonings, stir until well blended. Add stock slowly, stirring constantly. Bring to boiling point. Boil 2 minutes. Add cream. For a simpler sauce, use 2 tablespoons flour and omit cream.

SUPREME SAUCE

Make a rich Veloute sauce with reduced chicken liquor and finish with pure cream.

Analyzing the Too Popular No Trump

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

In auction days it seemed to me that about one-half the hands were played in notrump.

Minor suits were generally despised and, in fact, many a good major contract was shelved in favor of the ubiquitous notrump.

With the advent of contract, and the remarkable strides made in the theory and practice of bidding, it became clear that notrump was a greatly overstressed bid.

Now, due to the tremendous popularity of duplicate bridge, notrump has again acquired too much favor.

South, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

North:
♠ 8
♡ K J 5 3
◇ 10 8 5 4
♣ K J 10 6

West:
♠ Q 10 6 2
♡ 9 6 4 2
◇ K
♣ 7 4 3 2

East:
♠ K 5 4 3
♡ 10 7
◇ Q J 9 6 3 2
♣ 5

South:
♠ A J 9 7
♡ A Q 8
◇ A 7
♣ A Q 9 8

This hand occurred in a recent duplicate game in Crockford's Club, New York. I took the pains to examine the travelling score sheet after the finish and, to my amazement, found that in an eight table game not one North-South team played the hand at the correct club denomination.

All had been lured by the siren notrump—this in spite of the fact that a grand slam in clubs was ice cold. The bidding at several tables had gone:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

At other tables, South has leaped directly to three notrump over North's one heart response, and in these cases, too, North had retired from the auction, apparently delighted to aim at a nine-trick game. At notrump, the declarers could take only their top ten tricks. At clubs a grand slam would have been easy, requiring only reasonable care on declarer's part. Obviously, dummy could have ruffed three spades, and declarer's losing diamond would have gone on dummy's fourth heart.

Although a grand slam might not be easy to reach in the bidding, certainly a small slam in clubs would have been quite logical as follows:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
5 N T	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

A club bid, rather than an opening spade bid, is preferable on South's hand because of the great honor strength. South's theory should be to make it as easy as possible for North to respond. Obviously, it is much easier to find a response at the one level in answer to a club than a response that may have to be at the two level in answer to a spade.

When South, having started with one club, later jumps in two spades, North certainly has the material for better than a mere "preference" of three clubs. The rest becomes automatic. Seven, as I have said, is not easy to bid because, from North's point of view, South may hold only the Ace and two low hearts.

Household Hints

TOO MUCH flour in cakes causes them to hump in the middle or have a tough cracked crust. Excessive flour also causes humpy, tunneled muffins.

* * *

TO AVOID having a cake batter curdle during the mixing, add the dry ingredients first, then the liquid alternately, ending with the flour and other dry ingredients.

'ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY'

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

CHAPTER 48

"Are you not also a trifle sudden, my dear brother, in the way you helped turn the world upside down?" Ann rejoined.

"It will be the first of many such alliances, I hope," the young man said.

"Our family has always been of the opinion that it is we Germans who are the kin of your people and not the French. My uncle who has, sir, the most profound esteem for you, is exceedingly happy. He wishes the engagement announced at once, again with your gracious consent.

"My wife must naturally take a very high place at Court, sir," the [illegible] ance, "but it is not of such things that we think nowadays.

"It is towards the reorganization of German social life that we shall devote our energies. In that task I know that I shall receive invaluable help from your sister."

Matresser [illegible]

"If you bring Ann through life," he said, "as smoothly and courageously as you brought me across Europe she will be very happy. I give my consent gladly."

MONARCHY RESTORED

"I'll tell you [illegible] working night and day.

[illegible] the public invitation [illegible] to take over the [illegible] the title of [illegible] stead of President—was unanimous.

"The new German monarchy is to be a strictly limited one, in accordance with the statutes which have been officially accepted and which are now being prepared. There is great rejoicing throughout Germany and an immense amount of goodwill toward everyone."

"And Austria?" the doctor asked breathlessly.

"In Austria they do not seem to bother about how they are governed so long as it is by a Hapsburg. The Archduke Johann is to be crowned tomorrow in the presence of both Houses."

"And all this time not a word about France?" Ann remarked.

"We have been through a very critical time with France," Matresser confessed gravely. "Somerby left London for the Quai d'Orsay within a few hours of the international peace meeting and should have arrived at Paris in plenty of time for the French Cabinet Council the following afternoon.

"But you read in the newspapers what became of him. The [illegible] crashed. He was underneath the wreckage—killed on the spot—and it was impossible for even Downing Street to know what had become of him for many hours. The consequence was that France could not be invited to the final settlement and was treated with apparent disrespect."

"That is why you were hurried away from Tring House and sent to France at a moment's notice?"

FRANCE PLEASED

[illegible] intimate with the whole situation had to go [illegible]

"It was not an easy job but in the end they had to listen to common sense. Besides a certain amount of good came out of the delay. The [illegible] party in France was taken completely by surprise and had no time to even hold a meeting."

"And just what is the attitude of the present French government?"

[illegible] The [illegible] the seventh heaven of de[illegible] [illegible] for the peace [illegible] least [illegible] They have joint guarantees offered by Germany, England, Austria and Italy.

"In addition, four 'observers' selected by American authorities have been appointed already, one for the embassy of each country, and will take up their duties at once."

"What will be the observers' position exactly?" [illegible]

"They form a Court of Arbitration if any dispute should arise. [illegible] The United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's is intrusted with the [illegible]

EVERYBODY HAPPY

Matresser lit a cigarette as he [illegible]

"I myself am no politician, but it seems to me that you might look at it this way: Germany has been granted her great desire; her colonies have been restored to her. It is Great Britain who has to pay the price, but when you consider this matter thoroughly I believe that everyone in the Empire will agree that no price could be too great which guarantees peace.

"France has an international guarantee of her frontiers which is what she has been craving all the time. Austria has been hungering for her Hapsburg. She has him and, within a month, negotiations will have commenced with regard to her eastern frontiers."

"Come to think it over," Matresser [illegible] the only country where a certain amount of trouble may be expected is our own."

TWO TOASTS

"I should not be surprised," the master of the house went on with [illegible] in his eyes, "if this drawing more closely together of our various countries should not result in a great many international alliances. And so I am now going to ask you to drink two toasts."

[illegible]

"I shall ask you first to drink the health of my sister Lady Ann Matresser and His Serene Highness Prince Maurice von Reisenach, and as soon as Burrows has refilled your glasses, I shall be honored if you will drink also to myself and my alliance with Baroness Elisabeth Stamier."

There was unbounded enthusiasm [illegible] around the Council [illegible] Matresser's chair. Her son [illegible] Ann and her fiancé, hand [illegible]

We'll wager many are still in the "Margie" or "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'" days as far as knowledge of modern foundations is concerned!

Do you know of the web fine lastex weaves that pull in all directions at once, so your figure is molded and firmed into lovely arcs, though it's difficult to believe such a light handful of fabric could do a powerful job even on heavier figures?

Do you know of the new garters featured on every one of these foundation garments shown today, which positively assure a flawless waist-to-toe line without a bump in sight, even under the sleekest satin? They're marvelous. You've missed out on a real experience in streamlining if you haven't found the satin slip below, with diaphragm control lastex insert, and a beautiful uplift bra without a sign of fastening! Slip it on over the head. Eliminate all straps.

All are from one Boston shop.

NURSE SUGGESTED TO TREAT THE MARAUDER

CHAPTER 510

I HAD struck the only possible consoling note for Katie. The prospect of getting a post-midnight supper, with my father's mysterious twin brother as the guest of honor, appealed to her so strongly that she forgot her patent disappointment at not being admitted to the room where lay the bound man whom we had captured upon the balcony.

"Dot's right!" she said, being careful, I noted with relief, to keep her voice low. "Me, I hurry down, feex everything und keep eet varm until you get ready to coom. But I no make coffee till I hear you start downstairs unless you tell me fife meenits beforehand."

"I'll send you word, never fear," I said, smiling at her. "Don't forget the hot water!"

"Me, I never forget nodings," she answered with justifiable pride, for she rarely does forget an order.

"I know you don't," I said. Then added with a sudden thought as she turned away: "One thing more, Katie. Where's Jim?"

JIM IN KITCHEN

"Dot Jeem, he sitting in keetch en," she answered. "He say Meester Graham tell heem to stay dere un'til dey need him."

"All right," I answered, for I guessed that Jim would be needed before long, but there was no need to excite Katie with the knowledge. I turned back into the room only after I had seen her disappear beyond the swinging door which led to her own quarters and the rear staircase to the kitchen. She would not come back, once she had gone, but I feared that if I left her near the door, she would be tempted to listen for a few seconds to the passionate invective going on and on inside the room.

The captured marauder was still talking when I went back into the room, but his voice had lost some of its intensity.

NEEDS TREATMENT

"That ought to hold him for a while," Dicky drawled unsympathetically, and I mutely held out the first-aid equipment.

"Much as I hate to recommend it," Lillian said, "those shoulders I drilled ought to be attended to."

"Right you are," her husband assented. "I can do it."

"But you shan't touch him!" Lillian said in an unreasoning fashion as if she never had played a part equal to any man's in the secret service of her country.

"He'd probably die of sheer venom if you did touch him, Harry," Dicky agreed. "How about that nurse? She's safe not to talk, isn't she?"

"She's trusted with—" I began, stopped short as Lillian signalled me desperately to stop. I went on, "with secrets greater than this, I imagine. Shall I get her?"

"How about the friend of the family?" Dicky queried.

"I say yes," Harry Underwood assented eagerly. "But we'll have to blindfold this bird again and caution our friend to keep his trap shut while he's in here."

The eyes of the bound man were roving from one of our faces to curiosity, and I saw in them avid curiosity as well as venom.

"All right, then," Dicky said. "Madge, will you be the messenger while we get this bird ready? Bring 'em both back with you in about five minutes."

'Your Figure, Madame!'

POSTURE IS TO BLAME FOR SWAYBACK

By IDA JEAN KAIN

SLUMPING has bulging consequences—a dowager's hump, rounded shoulders, a roll around the waist and a protruding abdomen. Most of our silhouette worries are caused by poor posture rather than excess weight, and to straighten up is to slim down.

For swayback, exercises are given to strengthen the lower abdominal muscles so that they will hold their normal position, which is up and in. You will find that at the same time the muscles of the lower back are strengthened and that, gradually, the curve of the back becomes less pronounced.

The simplest exercise for swayback is to sit on the floor with the back against the wall and lower abdominal muscles pulled up and in and the small of the back pressed flat against the wall. The following exercise pays real dividends for the effort you expend for it retracts the abdominal muscles, lessens the curve in the back and slims the waist.

POSITION: Standing on knees, feet together in back of body, arms raised high overhead.

MOVEMENT: Bending to the left, slowly sit down to the right of the feet. With [illegible] the arms return to the upright position, then bend to the right and sit down to the left of the feet. Continue the upward stretch of the arms throughout the exercise.

If you have swayback or any tendency toward it you must avoid any of the backward bending exercises which will increase the curve in the back.

* * *

The dowager's hump, which is another penalty of faulty posture, is the direct result of the habit of carrying the head poked forward from the frame of the shoulders. Pulling the head in, however, is no corrective. On the contrary, it brings on a double chin. What you must do is pull up with the head always and remember to hold the chin level. The posture rule to keep constantly in mind is to stand as tall as possible with the head in line with the body. When you exercise, correct your posture at the beginning of each exercise and never permit the head to poke forward.

* * *

Stooped shoulders and the rounded upper back are another pair of posture mistakes [illegible] compensatory defects. They are usually [illegible] with the flat chest and [illegible] under the collar [illegible]

You cannot voluntarily straighten the shoulders. You must first strengthen the muscles—and this takes time and exercise. You must avoid exercises which bring the shoulders forward, increasing roundness, and when making circles with the arms, move them backwards.

If the correction of one fault is not to develop another, you must plan your posture program carefully to include only the exercises which [illegible] your purpose. Send for the new leaflet "Posture Makes the Figure," which shows exactly how to analyze and correct posture faults.

Send a stamped addressed envelope to Ida Jean Kain for the posture leaflet.

Cruise Clothes

TAKE the right clothes along with you on your cruise if you want to enjoy it to the fullest, advises Helen Koues, fashion director of Good Housekeeping.

"First of all," she says, "buy everything you intend to buy before your trip begins. Nowhere in the world will you find shops with such cheap, such smart, such new ready-to-wear clothes as in the United States.

"Also remember that dry cleaning is not done on most cruise ships. So leave at home anything that you have found by experience picks up soil with each wearing. Pressing and laundering, however, are done on most boats.

And now about clothes in general: If you are leaving from a Northern port take a heavy coat along as well as a light sports coat.

For active sports on deck you will want bathing suits, play suits, slacks and sweaters.

For days ashore select something that will not soil or muss.

HOME INSTITUTE

Transform Shabby Furniture

"WHAT on earth shall I do to fix up this winter-weary living-room?" said Mrs. Adams—and then she discovered this new slip-cover idea.

For her shabby Lawson chair she quickly stitched up a smart cover of cretonne, gaily patterned in mulberry, beige, larkspur blue and green. For trimming, she chose mulberry cord.

For her worn wing chair she made a cover of plain mulberry cotton rep. She finished seams with cord of the same color.

To make a slip cover, follow the easy pin-on way. Lay your material snugly over the upholstery, beginning with the top of the inside back. Pin down every 3 inches, then cut 1½ inches outside the pins allowing for seams.

For wings and fronts of arms cut paper patterns and when you're sure they fit exactly, cut the material, allowing 1½ inches for seams.

Complete step-by-step directions for slip covers of all kinds are given in our 40-page booklet, Making Slip Covers Successfully. Diagrams show how to measure, cut, sew, finish. Tips on trimmings, materials.

Send 15c for our booklet, Making Slip Covers Successfully, to Boston Evening American Home Institute, 103 West 39th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly, your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Is Tolerance A Vice?

By ELSIE ROBINSON

He's a liar and sneak,
A slinking coward
And a conceited boaster—
But he's also a brave,
Generous, great-hearted Hero!
He's a vicious little savage—
Greedy, lazy, furtive,
Disgusting in his habits
And filthy in his person—
Yet also a poet,
A knight in shining armor
Dreaming of gallant adventures
And delicate ecstasies.
He hates everyone (at times),
Suspects and resents everyone,
Is filled with feuds and furies
Which he plans to avenge
With abominable cruelties—
Yet, likewise, he's Wistful and gentle,
Sensitive, proud
And lonely for Love!

Who is this uncivilized monster . . . this glandular divert . . . this public enemy and domestic pest?

HE'S ANY AVERAGE BOY OF SIXTEEN! Somebody's young brother . . . somebody's adored but exasperating son. MAYBE YOU, YOURSELF! Your own 16 or 19-year-old self, caught in this bewildering mystery which is life . . . trapped by this erratic stranger which is Yourself!

Whoever he is, here's a book about him—"DOWN THE DARK STREET," by Jessie Fenton (Houghton Mifflin Co.)—as understanding as pitifully and tragically true a book about The Animal-boy as ever I've read. A book that should be on every mother's table, on every man's desk.

Lonny Bishop was the boy's name. He wasn't a bad boy. He was hardly a boy at all. Just an unadjusted, palpitating spirit, all dressed up in a body, with no place to go. So he went down the dark street looking for the answer. And never found it.

Not a bad boy. Just a weak boy rolled—as you've seen a piece of flotsam rolled—back and forth by great, muddy waves of emotion. A weak, aimless creature, who never knew what it was all about . . . who was always longing, in his weak, aimless way, to find his place in the sun—and always failing.

AND, AT ANY TIME, SOMEONE MIGHT HAVE SAVED HIM.

That's the pity and shame and horror of it all—at any time, someone might have reached out a hand and made a fairly decent, small time man out of him.

For he had the makings. Not the makings of genius or heroic leadership, perhaps . . . but the makings of kindly, commonplace citizenship. He had that one thing in him which has the power to lift any of us out of the gutter—he had PRIDE.

From the time he was a small [illegible] take [illegible] to compete with the bigger boys [illegible] that [illegible] when he managed somehow to hold himself erect as [illegible] led him to the black chair . . . HE HAD PRIDE. And if someone had believed in that pride and given it something to catch, he might have been saved.

No, it isn't a sob story. Nor a melodrama. There's no effort in it for great literary effects. It's simply the plain record of a poor weakling—who stumbled before he started.

But there must be something MIGHTY WRONG with you, Stranger, if you can read that book through without feeling as guilty as can be.

Household Hints

ALWAYS use level measurements in flour. It is easier to measure four level tablespoons of flour than to get one-fourth of a cup, its equivalent, unless one has a regulation one-fourth cup size for this purpose.

FLOUR has a tendency to pack down, especially fine wheat flour. One may easily put as much as an extra cup of flour in a recipe if it is not sifted before measuring.

First---Read Story of What Has Gone Before...

TYPICAL of the best in Boston is the family of ex-Police Sergeant Bernard F. Kelly, better known as Barney. And loveliest of the four younger Kellys is Sheila, a temporary stenographer at the State House.

Typical, too, of the best in Boston political life is young Attorney Gerald "Jerry" O'Donovan, of Roxbury, former B. C. All-American tackle, and Sheila's devoted suitor.

All's well in the Kelly home on Ninth street, South Boston, until Sheila, trying to save her light-headed 16-year-old sister, Patsy, from the consequences of a "pickup date," meets Bradford Cabot Talton, of Beacon street and Harvard, "Brad" Talton to his club fellows and adoring debs of Boston's Social Register.

Brad becomes infatuated with Sheila at first sight and Jerry, by putting his political obligations ahead of his engagements with Sheila, plays into his rival's hands.

A sinister factor enters the situation when Big Gus Mornick, king of the Boston rackets, learns Sheila has typed a secret police racketeering report.

Jerry saves her from entrapment by Greefy Koopman, a marijuana-crazed Mornick killer. But Sheila all but puts herself into Mornick's power when she hurries from a party at the Dover home of Brad's wealthy married sister, Mrs. Trudy Wendell, to the racketeer's stronghold.

Her purpose is to keep Mornick, who poses as a "sportsman," from adding her brother Mickey to his stable of crooked fighters. She succeeds in this, but has difficulty in evading Mornick's clumsy advances. A timely sentimental song crooned over the radio changes the racketeer's purpose, and she escapes. Strangely, she recognizes the voice of the crooner as that of her missing brother-in-law, Vince (Vincent) Barton, of Jamaica Plain, whose gambling proclivities have caused a temporary rift in his domestic affairs.

Brad, driving Sheila on her mission of rescue, is arrested for speeding. He is in danger of a jail sentence.

Meanwhile, Sheila, poring over some old tax records for the State, finds that Vince's father, Luther Barton, was once owner of valuable property at Kenmore square on Commonwealth avenue.

Mickey leaves for a "date" with Jane Prentiss, socialite debutante he has met through Sheila and Brad. Jane and Mickey drive away in the former's car and visit Castle Island, where they park. Two men interrupt them, flashing a badge. As Mickey battles them, Jane starts the car, hoping to escape publicity. Mickey leaps for the running board and is unhurt, but feels contempt for Jane's desertion. Sheila, Brad and Jerry visit the office of Registrar Frank Good[illegible] to explain driving without license charge. As they enter, Brad is seen by Ann Marsters, reporter for the Boston American, who scents possible news story.

More like a conductor.

[illegible] "[illegible] I don't know. Maybe. Maybe not. Anyway, not for a while. Let's talk about something else."

But Jerry, it seemed, didn't have much else to talk about, and he continued not to talk any of it the rest of the way to Scollay Square, where he got off.

Seeing she was 15 minutes late anyway, Sheila paused at Liggett's on Tremont for a sandwich, then hurried back to her department.

THERE was a voluminous committee report beside her typewriter but she had been working on it only a short while when she was told to put it aside.

In its place, she was handed a mass of closely written script with instructions to copy it letter for letter, making three dupes.

She had not got through the first page before she recognized it as a [illegible] of the [illegible] she had previously labored on.

Then, however, she hadn't known what it was. Now, she knew it was a secret survey of Boston racketeering and that at least one person to whom it pertained was Big Gus Mornick.

And Big Gus—under his code designation of Z-11—came in for frequent mention in the new material.

Under an entry "Z 11 BHQ" [illegible] a list of addresses in Dorchester, Revere, Malden, Chelsea, Cambridge, Hyde Park and Mattapan.

Knowing what she already knew, it was easy to deduct that "BHQ" meant branch headquarters, and that the report thus reflected the wide extent of Mornick's operations.

But it also appeared that all was not calm and contentment in the racket ruler's illegal kingdom.

"NYC active," said the report. "Z 11 holding off 4 LXN [illegible] for PC. Heads [illegible]."

[illegible] Sheila thought, must be in considerable danger to have [illegible] the sympathy of the investigator, who, judging by the content of reports, was inured to dire events... Z-11, of course, was Big Gus. But why was he "holding off?"... 4-LXN—Could that mean "for election?" The

This year, in addition to proved economy, the Thrifty "60" Ford V-8 offers still more style, size and comfort. It is a bigger, smarter car to look at, with greater overall length, longer hood and new styling. It is a finer car to ride in, with richer upholstery and appointments. GIRL About TOWN

By ANN MARSTERS

Here's a [illegible] Cecil B. DeMille told me while he was in town.

It's about the time years ago when he was barnstorming throughout the country with a little dramatic group, not making much money and not being sure where the next week's pay was coming from.

Ann Marsters

"It was winter and very cold," he said, "and my wife and I were walking down the main street of a little town. We stopped to look in a window where some fur collars for men were displayed. Now I was very much in need of a fur collar, but there was no getting away from the fact that the price of [illegible] I coveted was $8.00.

"So my wife and I stood before the [illegible] trying to decide whether we could [illegible] afford it.

"And while we stood there discussing it—one of my ears froze."

Problem, Solution Of Jumping Fish

Well, we had the same difficulty with our goldfish — and finally found a solution. Every evening place a cake rack, which is somewhat like a sieve, over the top of the goldfish bowl so the fish can't leap out. It's all right to take the cake rack off during the day—because goldfish leap only in the dead of night when no one's looking.

"The courtyard before the gallery was decorated with a sedan automobile. A skeleton was at the wheel; in the [illegible] car a lady half nude sat at a sewing machine among weeds which grew flourishingly from the back seat while artificial rain pelted down from the car roof.

"The entrance was lined with more women. Out of the body of one grew mushrooms. A bat was taking off from her head. Another was wearing a goat's skull as a hat. Over the torso of a third a broken egg was spreading. A fourth was crowned with a smoking frying pan, a fifth had electric lights sprouting from her ears.

Unlighted Room Best For Nightmare Pictures

"In the first exhibition room the ceiling was of gunny sacking. The floor was piled ankle deep with dead leaves and moss. There were occasional patches of swamp water. At each corner stood a luxurious bed with silk coverlets. There were surrealists paintings in another room but they were invisible, as the room was left pitch dark.

"A third room was brilliantly lighted by a chandelier concocted from an outsize pair of panties. This room was devoted to utilitarian objects—a sponge umbrellas, a goose feather, satin lined wheelbarrows, foot stools with legs elegantly encased in silk stockings, bird cages containing gesticulating human hands and heads, torsos of boxers and so on."

Advocate Honor Given Editor J. A. Malloy

American-Advertiser Chief Lauded for Help to Jewry

Because he has been ready always to assist and encourage every worthwhile Jewish undertaking [illegible]

AWARD BY PUBLISHER

[illegible]

To a fine gentleman, an expert newspaperman and a genuine friend, the Jewish Advocate awards the Carnation of Honor, the Advocate said today in its columns.

"John A. Malloy, in the seven years that he has been with the Boston paper, has never lost an opportunity to afford the friendliest sort of publicity to Jewish causes and to assist every worthwhile Jewish undertaking that came to his attention.

RAREST TYPE FRIENDSHIP

"His friendship has been of the rarest sort in that it is based entirely on the man's principle of justice and fair play to all groups, and has similarly been extended to other elements in our cosmopolitan population.

The persecution of Jews abroad served only to intensify his passion for justice, and to this end the Boston Evening American under Mr. Malloy's guidance has been outspoken in its condemnation of ill-treatment of the Jews.

Last year three United States senators were sent to Palestine by the Hearst press and the Boston American played up their findings. Later a meeting for public discussion of the partition of Palestine was held under Boston American auspices at Faneuil Hall.

More recently the Romanian situation has been the subject of numerous articles under his direction.

W. R. HEARST DIRECTIONS

[illegible]

"Throughout Mr. Hearst's journalistic career," said Editor Malloy, "he has had his editors conscious of the human necessity for championing the cause of the oppressed.

"Mr. Hearst has always thrown the full force of his newspapers into a campaign against the persecution of any group, Jewish or Irish or whatever it might be.

"In calling the Palestine protest meeting at Faneuil Hall, and in waging the campaign against the British partition plan in Palestine and against the latest Rumanian move against the Jews, I was merely carrying out the wishes of Mr. Hearst."

Laughs Off Attack

"I'll be on the lookout next time," Miss Edythe Newhall [illegible] Peabody [illegible] declared as she laughed off an attack of a mustached hugger. She refused a police guard.

Spurns Guard After Hugging

[illegible]

"I'll be on the lookout next time," [illegible] declared.

"With the physical training we get here at school I can handle most anyone, but that fellow sneaked up from behind me. From now on I'll be wide awake and the one who tries it again better beware. I'm perfectly able to take care of myself and don't need any police guard."

Urges U.S. Crime Prevention Bureaus

U. S. Marshal Murphy Sees Need to 'Steer' Youth Right

By THOMAS F. PHELAN

[illegible]

While it is impossible to eradicate all crime, a great deal of it can be eliminated just as fire prevention bureaus have removed fire hazards, said Murphy.

Every modern fire department has a well organized fire prevention bureau and today fire losses are much smaller. In the same way, [illegible] where crime and delinquency are great [illegible] by trying to prevent [illegible] of young and older persons [illegible]

POINTS TO RECORD

[illegible]

ELIMINATE CAUSES

"The pebble in the streamlet has turned the course of many a river," Murphy continued. "What we need is police departments trying to keep young folks going straight instead of trying to make records for the number of arrests.

By eliminating the causes and [illegible] which thrust our wayward [illegible] persons into crime [illegible] town, city, state and federal [illegible] would be doing a lot to cut down America's [illegible] crime bill of [illegible] dollars."

Bay State Doctor Hits Blood Test Marriage Laws

Dr. Nelson Opposes Plan Here in Debate With Conn. Health Head

[illegible]

TELLS VALUE OF TEST

Asserting that in Connecticut the blood test is a success, [illegible] Osborn stated [illegible]:

1. By preventing the spread of disease, the blood test marriage law cuts down state costs, thus saving the tax payer money.

2.—Couples in love can enter matrimony without doubt or fear of dread lurking illness.

3.—By preventing the marriage of infected persons, the law saves [illegible] women from illness they otherwise would not contract.

4.—The law acts as an educational force which aids in control of those widespread ailments that United States Surgeon General Thomas A. Parran and state and federal government agencies are fighting.

[illegible]

In 40 per cent of the cases revealed by tests in Connecticut, the individuals eagerly sought treatment and kept hoping that Cupid was just around the corner, he said.

OPPOSED TO TEST

1—Blood tests are not conclusive evidence of the presence or absence of infection and fail to measure the communicability of disease.

2—The proposed law cannot control disease because most persons examined are infected prior to marriage. Neither can the law guide persons' behavior after marriage.

3—Money spent in making the tests could be more wisely invested in an educational health program against disease.

We can't educate the public by passing laws which force obedience against the will of the people. I'm for blood tests before marriage but not blood tests by law.

Chatter in Hollywood: That black and blue eye pretty Frances Mercer was nursing when she showed up in the RKO commissary today was the result of a too realistic hair pulling contest with Ginger Rogers in "Vivacious Lady." It was for a scene, of course, but it's too bad the star put so much realism in her art, specially since this is Frances' first big break . . . when all the smoke clears away as to who will play the mother in "You Can't Take It With You" it will probably be Billie Burke as we've been predicting all along . . . The youngest of the Bennett sisters, who manages to win no boundary bland no matter how hard the film going, and Henry Fonda, who is developing a stoic stance that is truly remarkable, are supposed to be steeped in tragedy in "I Met My Love Again," the Keith Memorial screen special this week.

IN SPITE of the fact that George Lee Haskins and James Fiske are Junior Fellows at Harvard . . . and Mr. Haskins has been [illegible] as the Bar[illegible] the [illegible] Scholarship, Bowdoin [illegible] Prize, the [illegible] Scholarship, the [illegible] Scholarship, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa [illegible] Society, the conversation was anything but [illegible] . . .

Among [illegible] Mr. Haskins [illegible] Junior Supper Dances [illegible] Berg and [illegible] who comes from Wilmington, Delaware [illegible] doesn't know about the stern supervision of our Junior [illegible] asked if they did the Big Apple . . . Perhaps [illegible] that.

McElwains Spending Winter in Georgia

THERE USED to be something about a soldier or a knight on [illegible] . . .

Now [illegible] something about a polo player which is very [illegible] to Betsy McKean and Eleanor Swift . . .

Betsy [illegible] at most affairs with Bennett Forbes, the polo playing son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Forbes . . . and when she is home from [illegible] Eleanor does the rounds with Francis Chalifoux, one of the Myopia Hunt Club's mallet wielders . . .

We are willing to wager that stories of blizzards, zero weather and [illegible] of snow bring a chuckle to the lips of Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain of Beacon Hill . . . as they bask contentedly in the warm lazy sun at Sea Island, Georgia . . . where they have spent part of every winter for years . . .

Only 'Just Friends'

PHOENIX INGRAHAM RENEE SCHANCK

LIKE HIS NAMESAKE, the [illegible] bird which repeatedly springs from the ashes of a [illegible] live again, the rumor that Phoenix Ingraham is engaged to Renee Schanck [illegible] revived in New York social circles. Renee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Schanck, who spend their summers at Magnolia, and Phoenix insist they are [illegible] friends, but society gossips who met them at the Stork Club recently [illegible] will soon be forthcoming. Phoenix is the son of Mrs. Phoenix Ingraham of New York and Bar Harbor.

AUSTEN LAKE

U.S. Promoters Keep Fingers Crossed as Braddock Fights Farr

AUSTEN LAKE

THERE IS A LITTLE OF THE DONALD DUCK in us all—an inherent love for soaping sidewalks, handing out explosive cigars or slipping lizards into people's pockets. But the most gifted of all our citizens for making other people miserable for the sake of a laugh, are the prize-fight characters whose standard of fun is measured by the pain and discomfort caused each victim. The mischief performed at any fight camp is, to say the very least, hilariously brutal.

So tonight I trust the fight characters can take a jest as sportingly as they dish them up. Because there is the makings of a very practical and painful jape in the Braddock-Farr fight at the New York Garden. Indeed, I can think of nothing funnier than to have Braddock biff over Farr this evening and then have Max Schmeling belt over Joe Louis next June. And wouldn't that be a tasty dish to set before the prizefight monopolists of this country"

[illegible]

Cards Indicate Farr

THE FUN MAY NOT COME OFF. Tonight the cards seem to predict a young and predatory Farr hacking down an antiquated and arthritic Braddock. The guessing odds are 3 for Farr to 1 for Braddock. Still, Braddock has had a habit of confounding the dope with some truly miraculous resurrections. He was beaten 19 times before he came off the floor and fought his way to a story-book conclusion against Baer. So, tonight, he may make his legend a little more golden by licking Farr, and I hope he does. Not that I like Tommy less, but that I like Jimmy more and also wish to see the aforementioned piece of hilarity unfold

It [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] June Schmeling [illegible] Louis. [illegible] improbable [illegible]

Well [illegible]

NOT MUCH! IN FACT, NOT ANY! For Schmeling is sure to go just as deaf and just as rude in matters of answering cables and telephones as Braddock was deaf and rude last summer when Max was trying to coax him into conference and yelling for the law. Mind you Braddock would be in position to yell for the law next summer too, because Schmeling will be obliged to sign an advance promise before crawling through the ropes with Louis that he will fight any person picked by the promoter within a stipulated time, if he wins.

But, if he wins, Schmeling is certain to feel no more compunction about busting his contract with an American [illegible] was scrupulous about [illegible] One dastardly [illegible] another [illegible] indeed. So, if he wins, the [illegible] Berlin as a state [illegible]. Heil Aryan supremacy! Hoch Nordic [illegible]! Baloney uber alles!

So, whichever of three endings happen tonight—whether Braddock wins graciously, loses nobly or draws honorably, it will be his last major fight and the nearest he will ever approach his old title. If he loses he will be null as a box-office attraction. If he wins he can hardly hope for another shot at Louis, for nothing could be more abhorrent to the public than seeing him chopped up again as he was chopped in Chicago last summer. And Schmeling will treat him like the measles.

Fingers Crossed, Men!

SO, FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE ennobling sport two things must happen. Farr must lick Braddock tonight and Louis must tag Schmeling in June. Nothing less will satisfy the avaricious promoters who are anxious to bag every available dollar and who can then fish the public purse for one more big haul in September—Louis vs. Farr!

Do I imply that the interested parties will take steps to insure this eventuality. I do not! I think, and I trust I am not being credulous, that, though these parties might like to fiddle with the works by dropping a pill or adjusting the fix where either or both would do themselves some good, that the fights will be sanitary, due to the character of the contestants and the penalties involved.

Arthur Donovan is unimpeachable as a referee. Neither Braddock nor Farr are fixable types. Louis is gnawed by ambition to wipe out the stain on his escutcheon and Schmeling is devouring with a yearning to be the only ex-champion to recapture his crown.

So, it looks as though the fight promoters will have to let capricious nature take its course and keep their fingers piously crossed in the trust that no miracle will take place tonight or during the big business of next June.

Farr Has 7½-Lb. Pull on Braddock

By BOB CONSIDINE

International News Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (INS)—Fully recovered mentally and [illegible] the rugged Welshman may next [illegible] the last of his long and story book [illegible]

Farr weighed 207 pounds while Braddock tipped the beam at 199½, two pounds more than he scaled for his losing championship defense against Joe Louis last summer in Chicago.

The Welshman is favored in the [illegible] to keep [illegible] the 10-round route.

Some $50,000 is expected to trickle into the till, according to Promoter Mike Jacobs, and 15,000 fans will fill the Garden to the rafters. Ticket specs were getting $20 for the choicer $11.50 seats.

Writers from England, Canada and many parts of the country have crippled press accommodations with their requests.

The fight will be broadcast beginning at 10 o'clock (E. S. T.)

The Welshman announced today that his seconds would be Doc Bagley, veteran American handler, Eddie Walker, another seasoned hand with the mercurochrome, and Tom Evans, his Welsh trainer.

Ted Broadribb, Tommy's former manager, offered his services but they were not accepted.

Braddock, as usual, will be handled by Joe Gould, his manager, Ray Arcel, Whitey Bimstein and Doc Robb, his trainer.

It was this quartet that mended his liberty bell cracks in the Louis fight, and sent him out there again like a patched up wine cask.

Both battlers have predicted knockouts, but few gamblers are offering prices on such a contingency.

Farr's general plan of campaign is to come out swinging and bull his way about and making use of his new and hefty left hand thump.

The winner of the match will meet Max Baer at the Garden on March 11, and the survivor of that titan tic encounter will fight the winner of the Louis-Schmeling fight.

Max Baer To Come Back To Ring | Picks Farr To Defeat Braddock

By JACK CONWAY

Mr Boston

MAX BAER wires from California he has agreed to stage a ring come-back against the winner of the ten-round bout between Jimmy Braddock and Tommy Farr which takes place in New York tonight. Baer probably believes his announcement should be the occasion for a great public celebration.

I do not know of any reason why boxing fans should display the least enthusiasm because Baer intends to return to the ring. As a champion and former champion, Max gave very little fistic value for the hundreds of thousands of dollars that were showered on him.

One can excuse a boxer with limited natural ability for making a miserable ring showing, but one cannot condone the failures of one who possessed a certain amount of ring class and dissipates it away.

The Baer who knocked out Ernie Schaaf and Max Schmeling was a great heavyweight. He was eager to reach the top in his profession and also to gain glory and riches. He trained faithfully, and gave his best when under fire.

I was in the press row the night Baer knocked out Schmeling. Schmeling had lost his world's title to Jack Sharkey, and was trying to fight his way back to the head of his boxing division.

The show was promoted by Jack Dempsey who was battling the New York Garden for control of boxing. Dempsey felt that with Baer as his ace card he would eventually gain control of the heavyweight division.

Baer fought Schmeling as Dempsey told him to. Max came out of his corner throwing terrific punches to the body at the gong for the first round. He beat Schmeling back under his barrage of blows. I thought Baer put the fear into Schmeling with those deadly body blows.

Merchants Give Prizes for School Bowlers

"The great interest being taken in bowling by the pupils of the Belmont High School is nothing short of remarkable," said Manager J. Johnson of the Waverley alleys in referring to the recent challenge of the school teams, boys and girls, to meet any high school teams in Greater Boston district.

"This deep interest, too, has sifted throughout the town," continued Johnson, "as even the merchants have entered into the spirit of the sport by giving valuable gifts of merchandise each week to the leading school bowlers in their league matches."

David J. O'Connor, one of the masters at the Belmont High, relates his idea in promoting bowling in the school, as follows:

"In all schools a majority of the students are not capable of active participation in the lettered sports such as football, hockey, baseball, etc. The highly developed few do the playing with the remainder on the sidelines for cheering purposes.

"Now bowling takes care of all excluded from the sports mentioned. It gives to them the opportunity of a healthful exercise, competition without physical combat, and this even to the physically undeveloped boys and girls.

"Just to mention a single example.

"In my class was a boy (he graduated last year) who was left with one leg much shorter than the other through infantile paralysis.

"It was hopeless for him to participate in the main school sports, but he proved to be right at home in bowling by more than holding his own with the very best bowlers in the school.

"I think what I have said will show the reason for my having taken such an interest in promoting bowling and the formation of leagues at Belmont High. My hope is that other schools will do likewise."

BOSTON In HAVANA

By SAM COHEN

SAM COHEN

HAVANA, Jan. 21—The town and many of its best-known families played host here for two days to the affable Governor Francis Murphy of New Hampshire who has that trait of making hundreds of new friends everywhere he travels. Government officials and his acquaintances here literally picked up the governor and the charming first lady of the Granite State in their arms and made sure their visit to beautiful Havana would be an impressive one.

The governor and his entourage came here with the happy throng of New England Drug Council vacationists and as was to be expected he was the life of the party. Among the first to greet him was Lou Smith, Oriental Park's empresario, head man at Rockingham Park, and one of the governor's close personal buddies.

You know that the distinguished visitor for years has been a rabid baseball fan, so the party took in one of the Cuban ball games. They really play it down here too. The governor soon discovered that and he was loud in his praise of the way they pick 'em up and throw 'em around the bags.

Suffolk Downs Chieftains Plan to Increase Purses

Turf Writers Throw Party for Conners, Linnehan, Adams

President Charles H. Connors, Managing Director James Linnenan and C. F. Adams of the Eastern Racing Association were given a dinner at Hotel Lenox by the New England Turf Writers, at which plans for the coming season were thoroughly gone over.

Mr. Adams gave the writers an insight of the numerous difficulties a racing plant has to contend with, showing it is not all clean sailing by any means.

Opinion, however, was that the season of 1938 would prove the best yet at Suffolk Downs.

It is the plan of the association to give larger purses to attract the best thoroughbreds in the country. Even the stake events will be increased in money value.

While the season's program has not officially been announced, notime has already been given of the sending of prominent stables to the East Boston track; stables which in past years have passed up New England racing for Saratoga and western tracks.

The committee is awaiting sanction of dates for Suffolk Downs by the Massachusetts Racing Committee, after which all racing plans for 1938 will be made public.

William Shelly, whom Lou hired for presiding steward here when the track opened, was called suddenly back to the states. The new man has yet to be appointed, but confidentially it looks like Tom Thorpe will be over to take charge of the racing activities.

Fountain Source Of Monopoly Data

Frank Fetter Seen as Authority On Subject

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—In connection with the current hue and cry against "monopoly," it is foolish to analyze only the secondary sources—the utterances of politicians. The primary reservoir of ideas and information from which they derive their information and their inspiration is a little band of theorists, headed by Frank Albert Fetter, Princeton University veteran economist.

Although the Democrats have recently been talking about monopoly it is a bipartisan game. Senator William Borah, Republican Senator from Idaho, an outstanding antimonopolist, has publicly paid tribute to Professor Fetter as his fountain source of data. Moreover, in the campaign of 1936, Mr. Fetter was invited to come to Topeka, Kansas, to confer with Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican standard bearer.

OLD FASIONED COMPETITION

Dr. Fetter carries the banner in favor of good old fashioned competition.

In his book, "The Masquerade of Monopoly," written on the eve of the New Deal, Dr. Fetter berated the nature of the anti-trust attitude of earlier administrations toward big business.

In setting forth his objectives, Dr. Fetter said:

"The Department of Justice long expended much energy in its blundering attempts to prevent business itself from making efforts to end the countless petty, concerned modes of discrimination in credit terms and in service. This was all on the wrong road. Rather, the regularization of such business practices and bringing them under public oversight is necessary to the attainment of truly competitive nondiscriminatory prices. In this there is a large field for the cooperative activities of the Federal Trade Commission."

Dealing with proposals for modern alternatives to the anti-trust laws, Dr. Fetter added:

"The proposal to intrust to a board of public officials large powers to sanction monopoly and to fix 'reasonable' industrial prices in interstate commerce is charged with political and economic dynamite. The analogy of such powers and such a policy with those of the Interstate Commerce Commission is misleading.

"The truly positive and constructive sort of service that can be performed by such a public authority as the Federal Trade Commission is the fostering and creating of open markets where traders in each line of products could and would meet to buy and sell goods fairly in free competition. Such a plan is not governmental price fixing. The individual (or corporation) should be left complete freedom in the choice both as to the price he shall post, and where he shall post it, whether at the factory itself or at a warehouse, subject only to the condition that the price, wherever posted, shall be open alike to all buyers.

"The well-grounded public purpose of the medieval fairs and markets with their 'merchant law' should be reasserted today, where under changed conditions and on a large scale the same need cries aloud for fulfillment. Then, indeed, if enabling legislation is necessary to make such action legal and to force the unwilling seller to come in, it might be warranted. There is no need to fix industrial prices by law, but there is need to make possible the fixing of prices by the impersonal economic forces of competition and in accord with our system of private property."

All this smacks of nostalgia for the past.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

But getting down to brass tacks Dr. Fetter concludes with this note:

"A great burden of proof is on those who would substitute for the competition of efficient independent operating units of industry in our capitalistic system networks of artificial price agreements, and the ideal and practice of the vast financial consolidations, mergers of mergers far beyond the point justified by technical efficiency."

This sounds likes the old-fashioned trust busting efforts to break up the big ones into little ones.

Industry should prepare to defend its practices on the basis of the simple bookkeeping record of what has been taking place. Secrecy at this juncture plays into the hands of its critics.

Haney Sees Bearish Talk as Harmless

Financial Expert Declares People Will Weary of Demagogues

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
(Special to Boston Evening American)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—From a good many quarters I get bearish talk. Many people are just beginning to realize that this is a depression, and so they feel depressed. The extreme uncertainty and instability at Washington is a heavy weight on business sentiment.

Below, I list the chief bearish points that I hear made. Then I try to tell why they do not make me feel very bearish.

• • •

1—First, there is the growing unemployment, which seemes to cause a vicious spiral.

2—Inventories still seems to be worrying a good many.

3—The bond market has been pointing downward, suggesting investment liquidation.

4—The bankruptcy of the Erie Railway hurts sentiment and the holders of Erie securities, and causes fear.

5—The President's attitude in attacking holding companies is unfortunate in every way.

6—The bad situation of the utility companies is dramatized by Mr. Wilkie's offer to sell out to the government; and the government's response is not encouraging.

7—Foreign conditions are disturbing.

8—The exhibition of "co-operation" being staged at the White House seems like a sort of circus. Gangs of "business leaders" file in and listen to half-baked "happy thoughts" about this and that. Apparently, if there is any plan, it is to get a "build up" for some sort of an "I-told-you-so" return to NRA days.

• • •

But I figure things this way:

First, it may be a good thing that the depression is proving bad enough to keep Mr. Roosevelt on the spot. There can be no alibis and forward passing this time.

Second, I believe that American people are learning a lesson. We can all see that the New Deal economic schemes do not work. There is hope that the "have nots" will at last see that it is better to string along with the "haves" than with political demagogues.

Luckily, no one can now say that Russia or France is doing anything that we want over here. (France being weaker than America, the New Deal prostrates her quicker.)

• • •

In the third place, none of the list of bearish points is convincing.

(1)—As to unemployment, remember it is always a RESULT, not a CAUSE of depression. It will improve as soon as business recovers. Unfortunately, too, we are well organized for relief. (It is what this administration has learned most about.)

(2)—Inventories always seem bad at the bottom; just as they always seem in fine shape at the top. (Remember last spring!)

3—The bond market is dominated by the Erie situation, and holding company situation. But—

4—The Erie has been on the verge of bankruptcy all its life. Anyhow, railways in receivership go on just about the same.

5—And the holding company attack has a very bullish side. Just as the New Deal leader slipped when he attacked the Supreme Court, so he has slipped in attacking all holding companies. Congress will not back him—just because no large group of sane people could be so unreasonable.

6—Mr. Wilkie is an intelligent man. His offer to sell will call the New Deal bluff. It is dramatizing the way the administration is heading us toward state socialism.

7—The "purges" in Russia, and the economic and financial disruption in France, are timely lessons for America. We are watching. (And war moves by Mr. Roosevelt will not be tolerated.)

8—The President may stall; but he will find that he will have to co-operate with business men or be saddled with responsibility for a real Roosevelt depression.

Excess Reserves Decrease

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Excess reserves of the nation's banks declined in the week ended January 19, the first decrease since Christmas shopping temporarily pulled cash out of the banks, the Federal Reserve Board said today.

The excess reserves, which constitute the banks' supplies of lendable money, decreased $20,000,000 to $1,370,000,000. Although Christmas money continued its return flow to the banks, this trend was offset by routine increases in Treasury deposits in Federal Reserve banks and in deposits of banks not members of the Federal Reserve system.

The decrease in excess reserves was not regarded, however, as being significant because in the previous week they reached the highest total in nearly a year. They remain ample to meet business needs.

The Reserve banks made no net change in their holdings of government securities last week, but sold $19,000,000 of Treasury bonds and bought $12,000,000 of Treasury notes and $7,000,000 of Treasury bills.

1937 Rayon Output Breaks All Records

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP)—World production of rayon in 1937 broke all previous yearly records, the Textile Economics Bureau, Trade Association, said today. Output last year aggregated 1,725,000,000 pounds, against 1,305,000,000 in 1936 and 1,072,800,000 in 1935.

Japan with 500,000,000 pounds, again led all other nations, with the United States second.

Production in this country for the year likewise established a record, amounting to 332,326,000 pounds against 239,926,000 in 1936.

Forbes Quizzed By N. Y. Solons On Men of 40

Warns Against Laws At Present Stage Of Development

By B. C. FORBES

Because of the sympathetic interest this column has shown in workers over 40, I was requested to testify this week before the New York State Joint Legislative committee on discrimination in employment of middle-aged, headed by Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth.

Briefly, the view I expressed was that no legislation is feasible, at this stage of our social development, aimed at compelling employers to take on men over 40.

(If, however, the plight of elderly workers becomes more and more acute, public opinion probably will ultimately cause legislatures to pass stringent laws, perhaps forcing every employer, when taking on additional workers, to include a specific percentage of men over 40.)

Based on the increasing number of communications received from business concerns in different parts of the country detailing the percentage of their employes of 40 years of age and older, I told the legislative committee that encouraging progress has been made in bringing home to corporations and other large employers a greater sense of their general social responsibility, including responsibility for treating older workers humanely.

Company after company has sent this column data showing how many of their workers have to their credit long service, anywhere from ten or 20 years to 40 years and even more.

This I interpreted as reflecting a sense of satisfaction and pride among employers today over the number of wage earners who had been retained, through good times and bad, for decades.

• • •

I suggested to the committee, however, that it would be illuminating to ascertain how many men of 40 or over are taken on by corporations and others.

I rather think the number is small rather than large.

This interesting statement was made by Abraham Epstein, executive secretary of the American Association for Social Security:

"It is strange that some things we have inaugurated to help the worker aggravate this problem. The pension system set up by many companies militates against hiring older employes.

"Likewise the group insurance, since greater age within the insured group raises the general premium. The public relief system furthers discharge of older workers by relieving the employer of feeling sole responsibility toward the men fired."

• • •

I cited that Henry Ford, years ago, realized that employers had responsibilities beyond merely striving to make money, that he explained that his concern deliberately gave employment to a certain number of ex-convicts, cripples, and other handicaped wage earners, and that he urged other employers to take a similarly broad view of what they owed to society.

Some progress has been made along such lines, but not enough.

After all, the burden of taking care of all ranks and conditions of workers finally falls largely on business and industry, through taxation for the relief of those who are denied self-supporting employment.

I ventured the opinion that one weapon which should be used against shirking employers is publicity, and that credit should be publicly accorded employers doing the right thing towards older workers.

Chairman Wadsworth agreed with this suggestion. (Later I was privately quizzed as to ways and means to carry this out.)

• • •

One danger of the New Dealers' repealed proclamation that they will see to it that everybody, including even workmen who go on strike in violation of agreements, will be taken care of is that the less intelligent, less aggressive workers will relax efforts to find employment and that many short-sighted employers will conclude that the administration has relieved them largely of such responsibilities.

The elementary truth is, of course, that the more industry can provide for the wage earning classes, thus lessening necessity for public relief expenditures, the better off will be everybody in the nation.

New Diesel Gains Are Important

Industry Comes of Age As General Motors Opens Big Plant

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The Diesel engine industry has definitely come of age with the opening of the new General Motors plants. The intention of the big automotive concern to produce Diesels on a mass production basis can only mean that the principle it involves has met with the acceptane of the motor world. Another potentially great industry has taken its place in America's industrial life.

This writer, long an enthusiastic booster of Diesel companies, firmly believes that this addition to the ranks of industry will, in short order, follow in the footsteps of radio and air conditioning. Both predecessor growth industries played important parts in our economic scheme of things once freed from the experimental period. And Diesel must be ready when a concern as important as Motors makes such an aggressive, almost dramatic, entry into the mass production field. Those who mistakenly mourn the advent of a new industry comparable to auto manufacture might well consider the lusty growth of radio and air conditioning and prepare to witness a similar performance in the diesel field.

While the ownership of Motors provides an excellent medium for participation in the new industry there are other units that are well worthy of consideration. To begin with, all will be helped by the interest stirred up by Motors' action. In the future the promotional advertising of such a big company will bring a widespread appreciation of the new product's usefulness. In this way are growth and earnings capacity stimulated. Once again the writer suggests consideration of Waukesha Motors, Hercules Motors and Cooper Bessemer in the event of acute market weakness, and certainly before the next major upswing gets under way.

BANK EARNINGS

The almost universal deploring by bank officials of the difficulty surrounding attempts to increase earnings in these days of forced ease in money has developed a new angle. It is brought to light in the annual statement of the Irving Trust Company, of New York city. Instead of a cart before the horse parallel, it brings up the question of which of two government agencies is the horse and which the cart. The Federal Reserve Board, the report points out, has sought in recent years to make an abundance of credit available at extremely low rates. As a consequence, it is becoming increasingly difficult for banks to meet the cost of essential services, to pay reasonable dividends, and to increase capital funds either from earnings or from sale of new stock.

* * *

Few can quarrel with the above conclusions which are so clearly defined by Harry E. Ward and Lewis E. Pierson, respectively president and board chairman, who jointly made the Irving report. Nor will many question their statement that such a policy is at cross-purposes with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.'s efforts to promote sound banking. The latter has urged member banks to strengthen capital structures, to avoid loan and investment policies which, though they increase earnings for a time, involve unwise risks. It is hard to feel that the confliction of purposes is doing other than foster the unsound practices the FDIC seeks to avoid. And, as a consequence, asking which is the cart and which the horse.

MARKET IN QUANDARY

The stock tape implies that the market is in a quandary as to the course it should follow. Small wonder that the boardrooms are quiet places and so-called professional observers inclined to hedge! Best single indication so far is the failure of volume to pick up appreciably, despite the tendency to do so on the downside which it displayed on Wednesday. The news is of lackluster variety and hardly deserving of more marked tendencies. Our thought is that the market may make a new attempt to find its feet in here prior to another drive by the rails on their upside resistance levels. Good carloadings and hopes of favorable ICC rate action plus an absence of more receiverships should aid the group.

Profit Selling Impedes Recovery in Stocks

Wall St. Experts Befuddled, Bearish

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—For several years this column has periodically taken a poll of the Wall Street market experts on the outlook for securities, but never before have the returns shown such a confusion on the longer term view.

The majority of these experts are bearish for the next six months but are hopeful on the last half of the year.

My friend Marshall Foster of Grayson M-P Murphy & Co., who called the turn on the fall bear market, believes it is impossible to have a market opinion for the longer term. He prefers following an entirely opportunist policy marketwise, following whatever trends develop, rather than attempting to predict them, and permitting the market to tell its own story.

CITES VIEWS

He goes on to say:

"We have been in a bear market since March, and in the past it has always been good practice to consider such a major trend still in effect until either the market's direction actually has changed or there are stronger reasons to expect a change than the present vague discussions of armaments, inflation and co-operation between business and the government."

John H. Lewis of Goodbody & Co. thinks "no one can tell" the outlook over the longer term because it "hinges on political action."

On the other hand, Stanley W. Prenosil of W. C. Langley & Co. looks for "a general recovery starting this spring, unless the international situation should take a decided turn for the worse."

W. S. Scott of Emanuel & Co. is bearish. He says that market from February to June will be down "with possibility that lows of last October will be broken."

ALSO BEARISH

Also bearish is Michael Ross of H. G. Einstein & Co., who says "the market should have a moderate spring rally beginning some time in February and lasting about six to eight weeks. The outlook beyond that is for a test of 1936 lows with the chances favoring a break through."

"Dependent on business and political developments," is the way C. T. Revere of Munds, Winslow & Potter sizes it up, and Hugh Bridgeman of James H. Oliphant & Co. says:

"Question whether stocks have registered lows must remain open until this year is further along. Disappointments may develop after some weeks over slowness of business to revive quickly. Market swings have become sharper and shorter owing to influence of government on business. Later this year a violent upturn is a possibility."

"The tangible considerations which have worked against the employment of capital either in new or old enterprises, still exist. The creation of purchasing power by the government diminished to the vanishing point last year. I would say the question on which the market depends this year is whether or not the money managers will be able to find some means of renewing the flow of money in the hands of consumers."

STATEMENT BY HUGHES

James F. Hughes, who authors one of the most widely read Wall Street letters, writes:

"I'd like to submit a rational reply to your questionnaire, but after reading in the papers recently reams of stuff regarding big-shot conferences, the possibility of a more refined NRA, the restoration of mass purchasing power, the necessity of more pump-priming expenditures by the federal government, the elimination of all holding companies, and the determination of Mr. Roosevelt to break the control of a "handful" of financial leaders over the nation's economic life, all I can say is I have an uneasy feeling that this is where I came in; that I've seen the feature film before anyway; that it wasn't a smash hit when first produced four or five years ago; that in the present revival there isn't even a Mickey Mouse on the program."

Portland Cement Shipments Off

Shipments of Portland cement, according to reports received by Bureau of Mines from all manufacturing plants except one, totaled 4,780,000 barrels during December, a decrease of 23½ per cent as compared with December, 1936. Production during the period totaled 7,044,000 barrels and stocks on hand at the end of the month were 24,890,000 barrels.

Vanadium-Alloys

Vanadium-Alloys Steel Co. declared a dividend of 60 cents, payable March 2 to stock of record February 19.

Few Groups Manage to Move Up

NEW YORK, Jan. 21—Efforts at a rallying follow-through in today's stock market met with profit selling resistance, although a few aircrafts, rubbers and specialties managed to continue the climb.

A mild and selective comeback got under way following a dip at the opening. The pace was extremely slow, however, and near the fourth hour moderate losers were plentiful.

Speculative forces apparently had little to go on in the matter of spot news, but the string of presidential conferences with business leaders apparently sustained hopes in board rooms that chances for economic recovery have grown considerably better.

Bonds and commodities were somewhat mixed. Listed carrier loans of the so-called low-priced variety received support. The French franc softened when doubts arose whether the latest Chautemps cabinet could be maintained.

Up fractions to 2 points at the best—some retreated later—were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, General Tire & Rubber, Crown Cork, American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Bethlehem Steel, Crucible, Yellow Truck, Mack Truck, Philip Morris, J. C. Penney and Standard Oil of N. J.

HOMESTAKE WEAK

Homestake Mining weakened after its recent jump to new highs. Backward also were Owens-Illinois, Nash-Kelvinator, Anaconda, Kennecott, North American, Western Union, American Metal and Briggs Manufacturing.

Freeport Sulphur came to life on the advancing side with the disclosure of a sizable upturn in 1937 earnings.

December net operating income figures of the railroads were again unpleasant reading, especially those for Erie, but these provided no particular surprises. Last week's freight loadings total, released today, was up more than seasonally.

Talk of a new naval building program costing possibly $1,000,000,000 tended to revive interest in aviations and others that may come in for large governmental orders.

A buying influence for rubbers were expectations of observers in this field that the foreign control committee at London would meet soon and decree a substantial cut in exports of the staple.

Bolstering oils was the decision of the Texas Railroad Commission to shut down all wells in the state for the next six Sundays.

Unsettlement in the copper price structure kept metals in the background, although offerings here were limited.

CURRENT TOPICS

On the cheerful side of the market ledger was the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet estimating an upturn in retail spending for the country as a whole at 1 to 4 per cent over the previous week and 2 to 8 per cent above the corresponding period a year ago.

Aggressively conducted clearance promotions, it was said, made deeper inroads on falling inventories. Wholesale demand was placed at 3 to 10 per cent ahead of the same 1937 week.

The review added that orders from merchants beyond immediate needs were restricted, which was in sharp contrast to last year when fall requirements were covered generously.

Dowling Heads First Federal

John C. L. Dowling, formerly treasurer, has been elected president of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Boston.

New directors elected at the meeting include Joseph E. Warner, former attorney-general of Massachusetts, for a three-year term; William F. Morrisey, for a two-year term, and Louis H. Donovan for a one-year term.

Retail Trade Up 1 to 4 Per Cent In Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP)—Stimulated by new demand for winter merchandise, retail trade this week rose 1 to 4 per cent above the previous week and 2 to 8 per cent above a year ago at leading distribution centers throughout the nation, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

COLD WEATHER FACTOR

"Snow and cold weather pushed winter merchandise to the top of shoppers' lists," said the credit agency. "The impact of this anticipated demand and the sustained interest in the agressively-conducted clearance promotions made deeper inroads on retailers' falling inventories.

"Fur garments, women's coats, woolen dresses and galoshes were among the fastest moving items.

"Many stocks of men's suits were reduced below normal, and enough overcoats were sold to lighten the carry-over.

"Sales of apparel for southern resorts and ski outfits for northern playgrounds increased.

"House furnishings, furniture, and floor-coverings received more attention. In silverware and jewelry, emphasis was on the higher-priced offerings."

WHOLESALE TRADE UP

Wholesale trade was 3 to 10 per cent above last year, the agency said, but added:

"An attitude of carefulness, however, accompanied the placement of orders beyond immediate needs. Many retailers restricted their commitments to 30 to 60 days, in sharp contrast to the policy in January, 1937, when fall requirements were covered generously. While buying of spring apparel broadened, it still failed to reach last year's proportions."

Carloadings Up 28,286 Cars

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 580,600 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 28,286 cars, or 5.1 per cent, compared with the preceding week, a decrease of 115,435, or 16.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, and a decrease of 281,881, or 32.7 per cent, compared with 1930.

New Financing

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (AP)—New financing for the week amounted to $22,207,070, against $280,211,514 for the corresponding week last year and $48,711,500 the previous week, the Poor's Publishing Company reported today.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

FRIDAY,
JANUARY 21, 1938

+ + Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be like minded, one toward the other. —Romans XV., 5. + +

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. John B. Parry, Congregational minister, Wellesley. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. S. T. Achenbach, Congregation al minister, Boston.

The Editor Says:

A NATION-WIDE mobilization of SPENDING POWER is being undertaken by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as a contribution to recovery.

The group soundly advises women, in whom buying power largely rests, to buy what they need and can afford and to BUY NOW.

President Roosevelt, alert to the possibilities of such a movement, also cautions women to spend "not thoughtlessly, but sanely and PATRIOTICALLY."

That puts the emphasis where it ought to be, on BUYING PATRIOTICALLY, and that means BUYING AMERICAN.

The power to spend comes from wages. And WAGES COME FROM JOBS.

Jobs come from production and production depends upon demand. Economists know that if AS LITTLE AS TEN PER CENT OF WHAT WE BUY is of foreign production we will have DEPRESSION IN AMERICA.

So the women of America would only WASTE BUYING POWER if their spending loads them up with foreign goods.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY

—is capable of supplying American women with almost all their needs. It is capable of giving employment to the wage earners upon whom they rely for spending money.

But it cannot give jobs to American workers and pay them wages with money SPENT ABROAD.

Of course, American women should not be afraid to spend. It can be a heartening boost for recovery to have them dedicate themselves "to a continuing crusade to rid this country of the dreadful fear of spending."

And they can look forward to the success of their movement, as the President told them, with full knowledge that by doing so we shall keep men employed and many now unemployed will be able to go back to work.

But let us do our spending PATRIOTICALLY, as Mr. Roosevelt said.

Let us spend for AMERICAN RECOVERY, invest the wages we get from the productive work Americans do in the producing industries which provide AMERICAN JOBS for AMERICAN WORKERS.

THE BAGPIPES PLAY

—and tonight members of Boston's famous Caledonian Club celebrate the 179th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, greatest of Scottish poets.

This is an important event—important not only for those whose ancestors came from the Land of the Thistle, but important also for those of all races and creeds.

At this time when too many people entertain the belief that the world owes the individual a living and that government is something akin to Santa Claus, we ought to read more about Robert Burns' life. There is inspiration there for everybody, for youth especially.

Born in poverty, the like of which none of us know today, Burns became a poet who will be remembered as long as English is spoken.

He achieved this distinction by a mighty determination to succeed and by abundant hard work. The fact that in childhood he was denied even a primary school education served only to urge him onward.

Let us tonight sing "Should auld acquaintance be forgot and never brought to min'?" and recite "Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing."

And as we sing and recite, let us open our eyes to the truth that the only real success in this short life depends on what we do for ourselves, not on what others may do for us.

A GREAT CHURCHMAN

—was the Rt. Rev. Charles Wesley Burns, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New England, whose sudden death brings sorrow to the nation.

We knew Bishop Burns, and we admired him greatly. One of his last acts was the selection of a Bible text for this page. It was published the day before he died.

He was a sincere believer in the brotherhood of man, and his whole life, from his youth spent serving the spiritual needs of the Montana settlements, was glorious proof of the fact that he practised what he preached.

Bishop Burns' work will continue. There is no doubt of that. Men of his worth never really leave this world. They live eternally in the hearts of all who loved them.

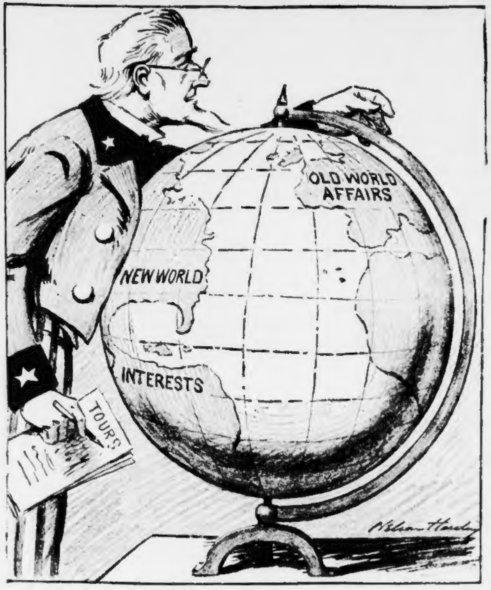
COMMON SENSE

—inspires and justifies the decision of Mayor Tobin not to accept any more invitations to evening dinners and other functions until he has had a chance to "catch up with his job." Heads of cities, like the rest of us, must sleep if they wish to do good work.

"Early to bed and early to rise" may not make a man wealthy, despite the oft-quoted proverb. But it certainly helps one to keep physically fit.

Study Your Own Affairs -:-

By
Nelson Harding



It has never been a good idea, and this certainly is not a good time, for Uncle Sam to be nosing into Old World affairs.

His own hemisphere, with its legitimate New World interests, is enough for him to concern himself about. That's the part of the globe to study.

New York Day by Day -:-

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.

THOUGHTS while strolling: Gene Tunney cries the correct "Brava!" when women stars triumph at first nights. Swell coiffure: Mrs. Dodge Sloane's. Brunette Bob Benchley's mustache looks blondish. Duluth sounds like a dove's coo and Schenectady tearing paper. Most radio commentators would profit studying the delivery of Bryan Field, of the race courses. Wide-eyed Martha Deane window snooping.

Donald Duck's squawking sounds like Rae Dooley in that baby carriage scene in the Follies. Society's grocer: Eddie Reeves. Jules Brulator with feathered head-dress would make a swell model for an Indian chief. The most publicized of the heiresses: Gloria Baker.

Democracy among the swells: Mrs. John Hay Whitney's nickname of Liz and her husband's of Jock. The astrological Myra Kingsley is almost a double for Ina Claire. Fay King, the self-effacing cartoon lady. Good ad for the hotel lobby—the well-fed looking Oscar.

Memory: The string of red peppers on the kitchen wall. Dick Berlin can fatten up and thin down quicker than anything. One of these days some genius will begin writing the dailiness of New York as Pepys did of London—and we will have a new and needed type of columnist.

Not all the handsome boys have been lassoed by the movies. The business world has its Robert Taylors. Conspicuous is Edward R. Stettinus, Jr., new head of the U. S. Steel Corporation. Any producer would sign him for the Heart Interest. Thomas Watson, the industrialist, is the perfect type for the role he plays in real life—the commanding middle-aged figure in big business. Bruce Barton, if caught by the camera ten years ago, might have been cast with the reigning Garbo.

John Baragwanath, mining engineer and husband of Neysa McMein, could make Adolphe Menjou sit up in one of those devil-may-care parts.

The dangers of over-exploitation were strikingly stressed in the skyrocket career of the strip tease dancer, Gypsy Rose Lee. Out of burlesque beginnings she arose a headline topic discussed almost as much as any woman of her time, save Wally Simpson. From the continuous burlyeue, she went like a shot to a featured role in the Winter Garden and from there to the inevitable Hollywood with gigantic three-sheeting. She was daily paragraphed in the jottings from the West Coast.

Then somehow the publicity avalanche came to a full stop. She was asked to change her name. There were reports her contracts were not to be renewed. The clouds were gathering for that dreaded rumble of oblivion, "the thunders of silence!"

New York friends of Amon Carter and O. B. Winter do not worry about marketing for holiday turkeys. Each year they are supplied by the Texas publisher and the advertising chief. Carter sends the smoked variety—which the top trenchermen rate as most expensive of cocktail tidbits. Winter raises his on his broad acres in Maryland. In a like manner Lee Olwell remembers friends yearly with a brace of pheasants he kills himself.

And then Major Bowes, who shares the bounty of his weekly radio food harvest among friends and various hospitals. There is a special truck used only for such deliveries.

Those perky snack bars with modernistic fronts, circular counters and high short-backed chairs, French fashion, increase with the recession. I notice one on lower Lexington called "Place de la Concorde" which has the latest issues of Paris Midi and Excelsior on hand.

Still another is tucked in the basement of an exclusive block on the Gold Coast. They seem to have only a cocktail hour and night cap trade. Indeed the wrong people dropping in are discouraged.

Foot note of an ex-hero: I used to be one of those intrepid Ajaxes who, during a storm, stood smart aleck like at the open window laughing, ha ha, when the lightning frolicked. But a few months ago I saw a bolt cleave a giant oak a quarter of a mile away in Central Park. Since then I won't even sneak a peek at a storm.

That's That -:- -:-

The nomination by President Roosevelt of Solicitor General Stanley Reed to succeed Justice Sutherland on the United States Supreme Court leaves the western half of the nation out in the cold, so far as representation on that tribunal is concerned.

The West used to have two men on the Supreme Bench—Justice Van Devanter from Wyoming and Justice Sutherland from Utah. Now the court has not a single member from west of the Missouri River.

That isn't fair in what is supposed to be a representative democracy.

Leaving the West without representation on the Supreme Bench is one way of getting even with this section of the country for spiking the President's Supreme Court packing plan.

Senators Wheeler of Montana, O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Burke of Nebraska led the fight against the court packing plan When two opportunities came for him to name a new judge, the President picked one from Alabama and one from Kentucky.

Just as there are more ways than one of killing a cat, so there are many ways for a President to get revenge for Senatorial opposition to his pet schemes.

Westerners who complain because their part of the country is refused representation on the Supreme Court may be reminded that is the fault of some of their Senators.

But representatives in Congress who have the courage and strength of character to stand up for principles they believe are right are more important to the West than representation on the Supreme Court.

A Congressional committee is holding hearings on a bill to provide old age pensions of not more than $200 a month through a 2 per cent transaction tax. If giving a pension of $200 a month to everybody 60 years old or over will insure permanent prosperity, why not extend it to younger people? Let the pension system start at birth.

Human Side of the News -:-

THE Hotel and Boarding House Association of Margate, England, bars artificial blondes as maids, waitresses and hostesses, because "they flirt better than they work" and because "the one purpose in their minds is running after men."

It is one of those irritatingly brief dispatches which leave much curiosity unsatisfied.

Why are the hotel men aroused solely against the artificial blondes? If nature, instead of clever chemistration, has made the tresses flaxen, will the girls be the less inclined to flirt? And are there no artificial brunettes or artificial red-heads?

Maybe the inn-keepers have been reading Aldous Huxley's "Antic Hay." The synthetic personality of the man in this book, who built himself into ostentatious masculinity by growing a beard, is a bit of case history on the manufactured self. This kind of personality is unstable, never assured or at ease, and never has its mind on its work.

Cosmetics and styles are used effectively in heightening or accentuating some aspect of the person, but never in making it over into something drastically different.

But why is it that any dreaming girl, mistress or maid, deciding on a remodeling job, always wants to be a blonde?

The great heartbreakers of history, the ones who made and unmade kingdoms, who lived their lives in a grand razzle-dazzle of diamonds, gold braid, camellias, moonlight chateaux and satin chaise longues, were almost without exception red-heads or brunettes. As were the women of brains and creativeness who played great roles in history.

Aspasia of Miletus, Pericles' girl friend, had hair as dark as midnight. There wasn't anything of importance going on in Athens in which she didn't have a slender, jewelled finger.

Sappho was a brunette. Cleopatra had dark hair with a reddish tinge. Napoleon's Josephine had blueblack hair with a sallow Creole skin. Lola Montez, whose long-distance allure has never been challenged in all history, was a lustrous brunette and nothing else but. Lily Langtry had auburn hair, as did DuBarry.

We travel far and fast, we fly through the air, we run powerful machines, we court danger in a thousand new ways, but the annual round-ups on safety show, as usual, weird and unpredictable accidents more than holding their own against all the new hazards.

The magazine "Public Safety" rounds up an amazing list of errant happenings of 1937, some tragic, some ludicrous, all events that "just couldn't happen," but did.

Ten-year-old Douglas Harper of Ontario, Can., reached toward a horse to pet it. The horse lashed out with its tail, a long strand of hair formed a noose, and the lad's father found him hanging dead from the horse's tail.

Mrs. Schutzer of Titonka, Ia., was spanking her little girl, Patty. Patty, forewarned, held a sharp can-opener in the spanking zone. Mother went to a doctor to have her hand patched up.

From nowhere a hatchet crashed through the windshield of Richard Backman's car, near Pittsburgh, and fractured Mr. Backman's jaw. It had slipped from the hand of John Egbert, chopping down a tree near by.

An explosion in a Chicago street tossed a manhole cover over the roof of a five-story warehouse and down the elevator shaft. It killed the operator, A. C. Day, leaving two other persons in the elevator uninjured. The story tells scores of similar tales.

Industries are making marvelous progress in safety, in co-operation with employes. The day to day hazard of the road or street is still that unforeseeable chance—like the O and the O-O on the roulette wheel.

The Political Parade -:-

By
George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.

YOUNG Bob Jackson, Mr. Roosevelt's ace trust-buster, may not have busted any trusts as yet, but he has certainly done well by himself in setting up an organization.

During the last few years a sort of lump-sum fund in the Department of Justice has been putting a new sort of official on the payroll.

The special assistants to the Attorney-General have been multiplying like grasshoppers. They are mostly working in the field, too, investigating the wicked trusts, and as they get around $10,000 a year, and expenses when "on the road," the salary is pretty nearly velvet. These are mighty good jobs for New Deal lawyers.

Moreover, their lives in the field are in pleasant places, and they have even been seen at famous golf clubs on mellow afternoons trying to break par.

They are active just now in California, Oklahoma, and New York. Presumably they are working up anti-trust suits, going after big business in a big way.

And they are costing plenty. The first year of Mr. Roosevelt's administration these special assistants had a lump-sum appropriation in the judiciary bill of $360,000. That went up to $600,000 in 1935, although NRA set up real monopolies, and no trusts were wicked ones. No suits were brought under the Blue Eagle.

The appropriation under this head jumped to $876,767 in 1936. It was $927,000 for the fiscal year 1938, of which $168,000 was exclusively for special assistants working on anti-trust cases.

In the bill for 1939 the figure jumps to $1,076,000, of which $317,000, or nearly as much as the whole appropriation in 1933, is for the trust investigators and busters, who haven't busted anything yet.

When Mr. Jackson was before the House Appropriations Committee the other day he was questioned sharply as to the anti-monopoly activities committed to his charge. He didn't have a great deal of information. Promised to get it. Is now going to put the whole record in the hearings.

This will show—in reply to specific demands—just how many suits against monopolies have been brought, and their status. How many consent decrees have been entered, and the names of counsel for the defendants. The committee is very curious on this point.

Also demanded is a complete list of these special assistants. There are said to be nearly 200 of them now, 22 new ones being provided this year.

Here's an enormous set-up. And practically a clean slate for the Department of Justice, so far as anti-trust suits are concerned.

Does all this mean that a big drive is getting under way? We shall see.

They're saying around the Senate that the real back-stage story of the feud over the confirmation of Ebert Burlew to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior, which has raised all the row about wire-tapping and departmental snooping, is to be found in the fact that Secretary Ickes put his own name and that of Burlew on the plate marking the completion of Boulder Dam—and left off the name of Senator Pittman.

Big oaks from little acorns grow.

March of Events -:-

By
Benjamin DeCasseres

THE spokesmen of the Administration have cast around for all sorts of "causes" for the present "recession"—all except the one or two causes that are staring them in the face.

Looking hither and yon, Assistant Attorney-General Jackson said in a recent address:

> "Monopoly and big business have thrown us off balance, and this is the cause of our discontent and unsettled confidence."

The real reason of the "lag," which Mr. Jackson and Secretaries Wallace and Hull will NOT face, are these:

FREE TRADE and RESTRICTED FARM PRODUCTION.

The menace of FREE TRADE which to America, with its high wages and higher level of living, would mean starvation for millions, has reared its ugly head again under the mask of the Hull "reciprocal trade agreements."

The "scarcity" program of Secretary Wallace is rapidly sending our export trade into the red column of the public ledger.

If Mr. Jackson will take his hypnotized gaze long enough off of "big business" and non-existent "monopolies" and turn them on the Hull FREE TRADE treaties and Secretary Wallace's experiments in Soviet collectivist farming, he will find why there are "discontent and unsettled confidence" in the country.

The horrors of Stalin's charnel-house increase as the lid is lifted—and it is lifted almost every day.

Five death sentences the other day were passed on persons who (1) stocked stores with buttons nobody wanted, (2) stored window-dummies in the cellar, (3) "disrupted" live-stock breeding, (4) diverted funds and (5) failed to stock stores with adequate goods for which there was a demand.

These are all listed as "crimes against the state." As a matter of fact, like most of such "crimes against the state," either ancient, mediaeval or modern, "the state" is merely used as a cloak to mask the love of killing for the sake of killing.

After listening to what he calls two "Bowery Bums" who possessed "musical genius" on a popular radio program, Mr. Lawrence Calcagno, of Bradley, Cal., a reader of "MARCH OF EVENTS," writes me the following letter with two large-order questions:

> "I have always wondered what brings some men to the top of the ladder of success while others equally talented fall by the wayside. Is it personality, 'breaks,' lack of courage, destiny—or what?
>
> "What is it that lifts one glowing kernel to the skies while a whole bushel, outwardly appearing the same, flows to the ground as chaff?"

My own personal view is that it is CHARACTER that decides everything, and by character I mean WILL, PUSH, SELF-RELIANCE, TENACITY, AGGRESSIVE FEARLESSNESS.
